THE ETERNAL QUESTION.

(Shall a Man Live Again?)

By ALLEN CLARKE.

Many books on Survival after Death are open to charges of humbug, trickery, and hallucination. They are reports of events at dark séances with professional mediums, or claims through automatic writing, with no convincing proof.

This book, however, is the true record of strange happenings in the house of the author (a sceptic), events that came unsought, without any mediums or apparatus. Whatever the explanation of the mysterious phenomena, this account of them is scrupulously true.

All readers and reviewers say it is one of the best and honestest books on the subject, and has given hope and comfort to thousands of bereaved souls.

Published at 7s. 6d. The few remaining copies now offered at 3s. post free.

"WHEN THE HURLY-BURLY'S DONE."

(Stories of this World and the Next.)

These stories are based on actual occurrences in the author's family. The first one, which gives the title to the book, describes the awakening on the next world of a soul whose body fell in battle. Another of the tales, "When the Waters Went Over Me," deals with the wreck of the Titanic, and the passage of souls and their first experiences in the next world. Sir A. Conan Doyle says this tale is "a literary masterpiece."

Published at 7s. 6d. The few remaining copies at 3/- post free.

Special.—Both books will be sent post free for 5s.

Pupil of INAYAT KHAN

(Published by THE SUFI MOVEMENT,
December, 1925.)

5/- net.

The author of "Between the Desert and the Sown" and "At the Gate of Discipleship" has brought out a third volume to help the traveller on the Mystic Way. The actual need of the day, when what is called "occult understanding" was never more desired and rarely, in certain circles, more discredited, is satisfied by this new inspiration. The dark hours of misapprehension are explained, but with simplicity and love. Not since "Light on the Path" has there been so valuable an addition to the shelf of books "that open doors."

The Encircled Serpent

A STUDY OF SERPENT SYMBOLISM IN ALL COUNTRIES AND AGES

By M. OLDFIELD HOWEY. Author of "The Horse in Magic and Myth." With coloured frontispiece, eight full-page plates, and eighty-eight illustrations in the text. Large Demy 8vo, 432 pp. 25s. net.

The author's aim in these pages is to bring before the public, in a readable and accessible form, a study of the most wonderful, persistent, and all-inclusive symbol in the world: the Encircled Serpent.

The pursuit of this subject makes clear the essential unity of the inner teachings of all religions, and affords a justification of God to man, whilst its lesser issues are so numerous and varied that it has only been possible to select a few typical of the whole. But readers of all tastes and ages may confidently take up this book with the certainty of finding some aspect of the symbol which will make a special and personal appeal. To anyone requiring a fresh stimulus in thought or life, these pages may be unhesitatingly recommended.

December, 1925.)

The author of "Between the Desert and the Sown" and "At the Gate of Discipleship" has brought out a third volume to help the traveller on the Mystic Way. ## A Study of the Supernormal

BY THE REV. JOHN LAMOND, D.D.

"This is really a great book filled with great thoughts relating to this life on earth, and the life beyond. . . . The latter part of the book is devoted to the expression of the Author's conclusions from a life-long study of the meaning of Existence: he traces life up from the earliest beginnings and carries us into regions beyond this Earthly plane. . . . 'Kathleen' is an outstanding book and will have a permanent influence on the lives of many."—Light.

"Spiritualism, Dr. Lamond does not place in opposition to Christianity. Rather he sees in latter day spiritualist phenomena a new strengthening and proof of Christian teaching."—The Weekly Scotsman.

"The tribute to the character and activities of the young woman to whom the volume is dedicated has an attractive quality of tenderness and sympathy, and is written with admirable discretion."—Scotsman.

The author's aim in these pages is to bring before the public, in a readable and accessible form, a study of the most wonderful, persistent, and all-inclusive symbol in the world: the Encircled Serpent.

The pursuit of this subject makes clear the essential unity of the inner teachings of all religions, and affords a justification of God to man, whilst its lesser issues are so numerous and varied that it has only been possible to select a few typical of the whole. But readers of all tastes and ages may confidently take up this book with the certainty of finding some aspect of the symbol which will make a special and personal appeal. To anyone requiring a fresh stimulus in thought or life, these pages may be unhesitatingly recommended.

The Soul of Jack London

By EDWARD BIRON PAYNE. With an Introduction by SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE. 7 full-page photographs. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, 5s. net.

As its title implies, these communications reflect the very soul of the virile personality known to a world-wide circle of admirers as Jack London, the famous novelist.

A dynamic character, to which a materialistic philosophy was all-sufficient, finds himself overwhelmed and humbled when, at the unexpected call of death, he awakens to a realization that all his previous conceptions with regard to the world and life have stood for nought. "I am suffering" is the burden of his message; a message which carries conviction, a cry from beyond the veil to his fellows who still await the great change which must some day come to us all.

Madame Blavatsky

By G. BASEDEN BUTT. Author of "Modern Psychism." Large Demy 8vo, 288 pp., cloth gilt, 10s. 6d. net.

For the first time an interesting and consecutive narrative of the incidents and intrigues associated with the origin and development of the Theosophical Society is presented at a reasonable price in the form of a life of the chief Founder of the movement. Information only obtainable by diligent search through a multitude of rare and out-of-print pamphlets, magazines, and books is here collected, collated and analysed by an independent researcher, who has no axe to grind in the presentation of his conclusions with regard to one of the most remarkable and mysterious personalities of modern times—Helena Petrovna Blavatsky.

The Hidden Splendour

By A. SCRIVENER. Crown 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d. net.

In light conversational and narrative form the way is pointed out to the attainment of a realization of that Hidden Splendour which is veiled by the world of material phenomena. The wisdom of dwelling in a conception of that wholly good reality is also indicated as offering a means of enjoying permanently an enriched state of consciousness in everyday life.

The Voice

By JOAN HALFORD. Crown 8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d. net.

No one can fail to be gripped by this astounding human document. Stamped with sincerity, the author's message utters a cry of warning to the thousands who are ignorantly trafficking with the Unseen. The facts are beyond dispute: their interpretation must be left to the individual judgment. Whose was the Voice that helped Joan Halford in her extremity; why were its promises all kept except one; and what was the object of the author's terrible ordeal? These constitute a psychological problem which cannot fail to provoke discussion, while the story itself grips the imagination and thrills the reader to the end.

In view of the gratifying and continued success of Lewis Spence's "Problem of Atlantis," the publishers are encouraged to offer a history of the long-lost Island Continent from the same capable pen, and founded on ascertained facts and approved analogies.

Graphically portrayed and presented with commendable clarity, this reconstruction of Atlantean civilization and history will, it is confidently anticipated, be accorded a reception as cordial as that enjoyed by its predecessor.

THE PROPHET

by Kahlil Gibran

Behind the stress which the author lays on the interdependence of all action, of man and of the elements, a strong bent toward pantheism is apparent. It is not the joyous and active pantheism of Traherne, with his doctrine of infinite wants infinitely satisfied, but the peaceful undesiring attitude of the philosophies drawn from the Upanishads.

"Fearlessly he writes of the great things, the things that little men leave alone in their dread of pronouncing platitudes, and he writes of them with such sincerity, depth, stirring imagery, and grave literary beauty, that we place him at once in the line of the great mystics, the line of Kabir and Jellaluddin, Traherne and Blake."—Country Life.

An Amazing Book

This wonderful work marks the culmination of years of study and research into the thought and philosophy which, while rooted in the ancient Number Symbolism of the Greek and Hebrew Qabalists, has been synthesized in the light of Oriental and Occult experience.

In it new ideas are put forward that challenge the best thought of modern students.

The Anatomy of The Body of God

By FRATER ACHAD

Brings us appreciably nearer to the comprehension of the One thought of God which is the Universe itself. The old static symbolism of the Qabalistic Tree of Life is beheld as dynamic. The Formative Designs of the Great Architect of the Universe unfold themselves before our eyes.

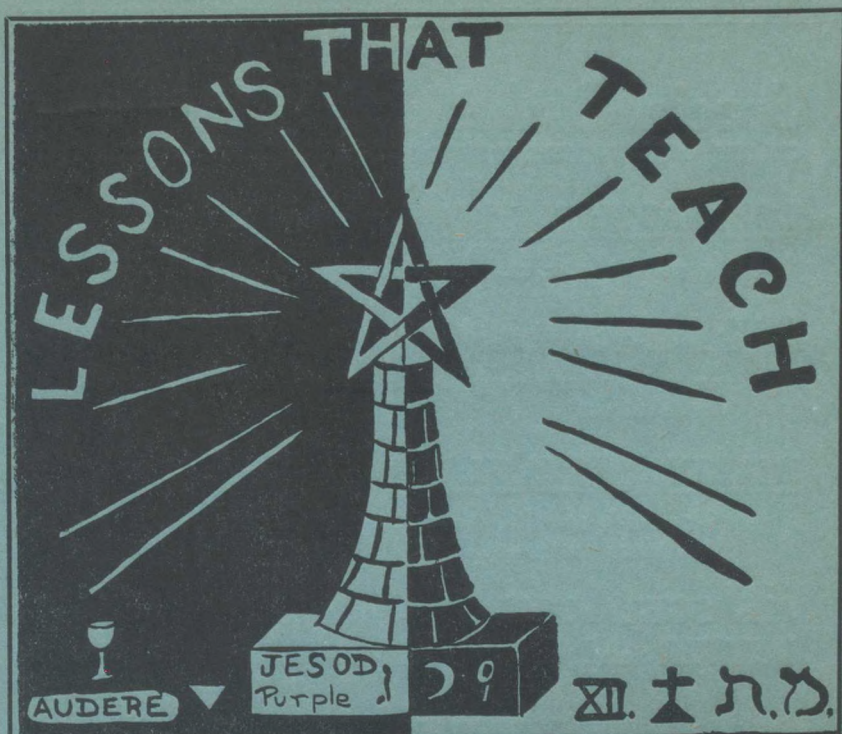

Students, teachers, Occidentalists and Orientalists, as well as laymen, all will find this a mine of treasure thought. Colour and black and white plates, together with forty illustrative diagrams, reveal new motifs of symbolism for architects and Free Masons. Edition limited to 228 signed copies.
