PREFACE.

Complying with the request of many friends, we have concluded to present this work on elemental and solar law, to the public; giving our experience in dealing with invisible forces in nature, which surround us in every department of life.

We have no wish, however, to do more than explain some facts we think are of importance to the student of the occult, when trying to understand nature's law.

The subject is vast in its relation to human life, however, and what we are in a position to explain, is but a drop in the great ocean of esoteric knowledge to be unfolded to human consciousness. Since early youth a deep interest and sympathy with the invisible and mysterious in nature, claimed our attention. Many times we beheld scenery and people, not visible to others, nor could we obtain a satisfactory explanation from any school of thought; we could not accept theories handed down from a degenerate past, or denials from a boasted physical science, which has failed in its application to human life, superstition on the one hand and egotism on the other, explains nothing; nature never fails to express correct phenomena, however, and if man fails to comprehend her, he proves thereby his ignorance.

Nature's method of using the elements, to produce manifestations of various kinds should be of great interest to every one, and knowledge of this law is what we sought, but could not find. We discovered, finally, that every department of life, whether visible or invisible, express a language peculiar to itself and through the study of that part in nature, one could communicate intelligently with the life occupying it, whether elemental, spiritual or material.

Knowledge instead of belief, is the demand of the present, that will rend the veil of mystery and remove many errors, which superstition has established.

Many are the pearls of truth given to the world by the mystics of that enchanting country, India, where nature seems to hold a feast of continual wisdom for those who seek the perfect way, and many are the souls she has fashioned into Godlike men, who are even today, the greatest authority on every branch of the higher sciences.

How we longed to reach her shores and partake of her wisdom; this was beyond our reach, however, therefore we sought in other directions. At length a voice spoke from the silence, saying: "God is everywhere, seek and you shall find." We went into seclusion and adopted the Hindoo method of training. While thus engaged we fasted from food at intervals of from three to nine days and from animal flesh entirely; the body groaned under the force of the new builder, but spirit forces inspired and encouraged, until the physical responded to the new method of living. * * *

When the soul became free from sense claims, it flew to that land, sunlit by the wisdom of ages, to sit at the feet of a spiritual master who understood its needs, giving all the information it could assimilate.

Our next experience came in waves of inspiration from Poets, Philosophers, Seers and Prophets who had long since arisen to planes of spiritual consciousness. We soon found that we were initiated into the eastern school of Theurgy, and under the instructions of those Masters our education began.

Words fail to convey the delightful experience as we passed through circles, zones and spheres of beautiful light, so different from sunlight, each place ablaze with life of many grades and character, that flash for a moment, then pass on, radiant in their happiness and beauty, their motion causing a sweet toned musical sound, each intonation more inspiring than the one preceding. Our thoughts were hushed with delight and our soul went out in the following words:

Who am I that gazeth thus, all benumbed with awe
At this display fantastic glory,
Ablaze with life, both young and hoary;
It were well we knew what part we play,
Our part well played in consciousness, will be
A radiant light on this conscious sea.

We were taken to the four great elemental centers of cause, from where all manifestation proceeds; there we learned the nature of the elements in their central combinations, the names of the Arch-Angels and their position in the government of systems, suns, planets and worlds.

We discovered spirit to be the ruling substance, alone self-existing, its first expression being mind. Thru continual manifestation in elemental forms and the experience thus gained, does it become self-conscious and individualized, as human and divine.

Experience is the only educator that can evolve a human soul to where it is self-sustaining.

The laws of nature are not changed or removed for any purpose, nor to satisfy any clerical pontiff. Her truths are self-evident, she needs no material display to introduce them, and if any one claims that right he is an impostor. Man being a cosmic center of force can when developed, accomplish unprecedented results, but until then, he must surrender to universal law.

INTRODUCTION.

The twentieth century brings many blessings to the human family; it places us upon the spiral waves of the cycle of mind and spirit, which promise the fulfillment of our most cherished hopes, and we consider it a great privilege to be able to play our part upon its stage of progress.

The genius of this age, will unfold the higher mental qualities and will power of the race, necessary to disclose the secrets of nature and open the door to a field of knowledge not understood in the past; one that will be the means of freeing man from the limitations and prescribed ideas of past ages, both socially, religiously and economically.

The elemental centers of Infinite cause, known as solar Gods and Arch-Angels, with their classified forces and varied possibilities, will be clearly understood, controlled and utilized for the benefit of all the human family, irrespective of persons, nations or races before the close of this century.

The direct action of these elemental intelligences upon the material or mundane plane, where chemical changes are necessary and constantly taking place, when directed by the mind and will of the Master, were looked upon in the past as mysterious and unnatural, therefore classed as miracles; we, however, understand them to be, the natural result of a well ordered mind, which has been trained to concentrate and reflect thought.

The average mind of the present, has outgrown the superstitious dogmas and creeds established by church rule to control human intellect, therefore cannot be frightened into unreasonable beliefs.

The law governing soul and spirit, also regulates mind and what is termed matter, throughout all manifestation; this law being just and accurate, results obtain at once, complimentary to the thought, therefore it is the privilege of the developed man or woman, to change and direct all expression in harmony with their latest and best ideals.

The advanced minds of every age know and have known, that well directed thought, intently reflected upon an object, either manifest or yet elemental, will change the form of said object from its present character, to that reflected upon it thru the thought; thought, then, is the architect and master mechanic of universal mind, that has built the universe. To obtain this power, however, the mind must be trained and the will cultivated to a degree, making them capable, first, to reflect and hold the thought upon the object, then direct and build the mode of form required; in this manner every undesirable circumstance one encounters while on the material plane, can be changed to that which is more desirable, by reflected thought properly directed.

Developed mind and cultivated will, is the adept's power by which he controls the supreme elemental energies, while they produce physical results; all these elemental forces, in whatever kingdom they belong, either animal, vegetable or mineral, or plane of being, spiritual, planetary or solar, will answer to the demand of a well regulated mind and will, in concentrated action.

In the lessons that follow, we teach solar law, showing the great possibilities of those elemental centers of force, known as solar Gods, or Arch-Angels, when under the influence of masterly reflected thought and will, of one who has thru development become a cosmic center of mind.

In our instructions we do not speculate with probabilities, we confine our instructions to demonstrable facts, free from mystery, or superstition; they are original, scientific and practical.

We have arrived at our conclusions thru years of patient study and investigation, therefore know that repetitions, prayers, encantations and formulas, used either by ancient or modern mystics, are unwise and unnecessary, when dealing with these most powerful elementals in nature; a more practical method should be adopted.

A well trained mind and cultivated will knows no limitation and will accomplish everything desired thru reflected thought.

Solar law is an interesting study, that awakens the latent mental faculties and enlarge their scope of comprehension. Fear, doubt, despondency and superstition, with many other mental derangements, will vanish like mist in the sunlight under the searchlight of real knowledge.

In this study, one is constantly surprised by some new discovery and pleasant unfoldment, thru which mind and will are trained without difficulty. We cannot repeat too often that a well trained mind and cultivated will, are the keys to success and happiness, which attracts one's own and builds within his soul the Kingdom of Heaven.

Nearly all failures experienced during material life comes from improper thinking; people have neither been trained nor educated, to understand the character of thought waves, many times out of harmony and contending for supremacy, both in social and commercial intercourse, therefore fail to gain their points.

These subjective influences, both sub and supermundane, surround every one's life, as well as spiritual beings, all of which take an active part in the affairs of every-day life, both social and otherwise. One can readily see that if not understood, they are likely to move under influence of irregular thought in wrong channels, thus misdirected, their efforts are wasted. Such inharmony react upon the personality, causing sickness, discouragement and sometimes death; such mistakes will be prevented through the development and unity of mind and soul, the Divine marriage of the daughter and son of God, or, if you please, the negative and positive principles of life.

In the understanding of these highly sensitized and illuminated intelligences, one soon grows into knowledge of real life and harmony.

To be well educated is to understand self. Truth cannot be discovered; it must be unfolded from within Thyself; wisdom leads to its development. Thought is the motive power underlying all expression, therefore should be carefully trained.

One should select his own forces and conserve them, to be moved only by well selected thought, in positive channels, towards an objective purpose.

First, sight the object of your quest, place it in your mind's house (imagination), then focalize the thought, having intended purpose upon it, until assured of changing its motion; it will soon begin to vibrate within the impulse of your will; confidence is then established in the mind, that will finish the work without further effort on your part.

Divine intelligences that are constantly seeking thru infinite love to reach the material plane and assist in awakening sensuous minds to their spiritual possibilities, if encouraged, will make life one song of joy and harmony.

What a blessing to have the privilege of material life, when one knows who and what he is and the wonderful attributes, faculties and possibilities of his nature; indeed he is the child of a true king, whose heir possesses both earth and heaven; when he finds his real self, he has started on a new road, marked out by scientific thought, free from care and responsibility, free from false claims of the flesh, and also from the suggestion and impressions of the past decaying cesspool of thought; free indeed, to bask in the spiritual and mental sunlight of the now, where one can hold communion with nature's God and the angels, conscious only of love and virtue.

Oh! life divine where e'er you roam,
O'er earth's enchanting sensuous home,
Beguiled by pleasures deep and strong,
Or, the sirene raptures of natures' throng,
In thoughtless revelry, on and on,
To deeds of valor, or perhaps to wrong.

Yet within thy bosom burning bright,
An esthetic ray, from heaven's light
Unquenchable, e'en by thought or deed,
Until thru sorrow's claim, its voice you heed,
In thoughtful silence, then you'll view,
Its rapturous joys to you all new.

CHAPTER I.

The Interdependence and advancement of Manifest Life, Its Relation to Thought Formation, Evolution, Involution and Environment.

Long before the historian was able to give a correct history of remote civilization, legend and tradition connect us with enlightened races, which have come upon the stage, played their part and departed, whose speculative philosophy, carefully calculated, enabled them to map out the starry heavens with mathematical precision and by geometrical induction, form a language and system of Divine worship in perfect harmony with solar law, and altho hieroglyphically expressed, is in full sympathy with nature's law on the material plane.

More than thirteen thousand years have left their geological records and evolutionary changes on the earth and in human character, since astronomical science regulated the social relations of men; yet this same system remains the fundamental principle in all language and systems of religious worship down to the present time.

The Son of God, the Virgin, Manger, Cross and Crucifixion, together with many more which have been woven into every religious system, are all planetary signs, having a deep spiritual significance to human life, far more, however, than has ever been understood by the Theological school. Solar science is the only method capable of correct analyses of scriptural sayings, either in the Jewish Bible, Hindoo, Vides, or any ancient scripture written in sanscrit. The Bible as it now appears, after being mutilated several times by command of selfish monarchs, is nothing but a confused extract from those wonderful sacred records of a spiritually enlightened past.

We have no wish, however, to deal with this vast subject more than what is necessary for this work, the facts are within the reach of any who may desire proof. Our aim is to show as concisely as possible, the continual harmony of universal energies in the production and unfoldment of formative life.

Thru Oral history we obtain a vague glimpse of the knowledge, comprehension and skill attained by the lost Atlantians, enough, however, to have caused investigation along geological lines regarding them, which return some marvelous accounts. The results of their genius and mechanical ingenuity reads more like a fairy tale than reality, and could not receive credence, were it not, that similar manifestations occur today. Their Oracles and Symbols, were so ingeniously constructed that they were used phonographically between invisible intelligences and mortals; a fact which is proven by the Trumpet, Planchette and many other mechanical devices used for the same purpose today by spiritual scientists.

More than six thousand years have intervened since that great continent fell, which would no doubt explain the Noah's flood of the scriptures, as we find no geological account of any other cataclysm occurring during that period. Since those centuries, however, oceans have rolled over their entombed remains; yet their victories remain thru the chain of events, to meet the next in line, who will, "Do greater things," while the prowess of their genius and inspiration from their exalted souls, will greet the coming conqueror and lead him on to victory; and over all, the Divine presence of nature's God, remains a silent witness, unfolding each life for greater purpose, and recording every event geologically upon, "Tablets of stone," for future generations to consider.

Whatever good has been effected thru the efforts of any life, even animal life, will rise again with later generations, the best of which are born into expression with the new genius, brilliant statesmen, philosophers, social or religious reformer, who are the more recent embodiment of the highest thought, evolved thru ages of generative activity, and are very often sacrificed to the ignorant prejudice of the non-progressive element which environ them; the accumulated wisdom, however acquired thru their experiences, is conserved by nature for further development of earth life.

The soul principle of many older countries, having retired from the leading lines of progress, have left the under element of their time to be awakened thru more experience, until they are prepared to rise to a higher level; all, however, have left some very important truths which have found their way into the philosophies, theologies, hypotheses and social structures of modern times. Many recent expressions which are proudly claimed as being original, are but the echo, or impulse of genius, that have stirred to action, the latent energies of ages which have rolled before.

Our Redeemers, Brilliant Statesmen, Poets, Philosophers and Reformers are not nearly made by any special consideration or dispensation of an overruling Deity, or for any special purpose; instead, they come to us out of the living past, already in touch with the reconstructive forces of the new, and in full sympathy with the highest sentiment of every age, especially the one in which they live, understanding its requirements, they work to obtain them. Without the emanations from these exalted minds and impassioned love for all earth creatures, we could not be what we now are, and yet, we continue to crucify them.

People do not understand the wisdom of Infinite nature in its adjustment of formal life, until the spiritual attributes, as well as the mental faculties are awakened, which only the few care to accomplish, this fact will account for so much confusion and so many different religious beliefs; when one's reasoning power is developed, the clouds of superstition fade away like mist under the sun's rays.

Vast indeed is the scope of human knowledge, and infinite are the planes of material wealth awaiting human genius to develop, and ever beckons to the one who has the will and courage to dare and to do.

Only when men presume to promote personal and false desires, does nature's elements react, causing sorrow and suffering to come upon physical life, finally resulting in the downfall of nations, kingdoms and empires, the shocking history of which should be an object lesson to those following. All things necessary to one's greater unfoldment come much faster, if his personal demands are not forced upon nature, which if received, retard instead of blessing him; we must all grow into the bosom of our God.

The effort of the eastern mystic and also those of later date, in the development of their spiritual attributes, has proven the possibility in human life, to overcome the claims of sense and win immortality thru individual effort long before the Judean age.

There is indeed, a peculiar fascination connected with the mysticism of ancient Indian and Egyptian lore, which charm the senses and appeals to the soul, awakening in the student a desire to follow where they lead, even beyond the great white arch, where one's own Divine self awaits the coming of all its forces.

In this commercial age, there is no time for soul wonderings, the chains of materialism are on, and the sad word reverberates, arise and to duty; with a heavy heart, all follow satan's call, and join in the mad race after the dollar.

India's aromatic climate is an ideal place for soul growth, her beautiful foliage, lovely valleys, smooth flowing waters, shaded by the sweet-scented flowering Lotus and shadowy palm, where beautiful birds of rare plumage send forth unceasing melodies and where landscape and mountain grandeur, blend into one harmonious display of architectural skill; outwrought by the handiwork of nature's God and kissed into bloom by the radiance of eternal day, there surely nature's Muse, builded her spiritual temple and fashioned her sons, to become the spiritual teachers of the world.

In that beautiful mystic land, people were wont to hold communion with their spirit friends, their Genii and their God, and from their retreats, waves of inspirational thought have wafted their way over many waters and cast a refining influence over every country. In one of those retreats on the shores of the Ganges, the Judean mystic Jesus, received the first touch of the master and many more were initiated into the mysteries, anointed with the Holy oils and baptized in the descending lights of the Holy spirit.

Nearly two thousand years later, her valleys were made desolate by the tramp of inhuman militants, and her great wealth taken to swell the coffers of a Christian-Pagan traducer. She will rise again, however, to claim her own, when her beautiful birds will be protected from the slaughter of commercial bandits for profit, or to gratify insipid female vanity.

Our earth has many times passed through severe changes in the evolution of her elemental life, necessary to meet the ever increasing demand of her human children.

As round by round, she throbs her way,
Whether gain or loss, she could not stay,
Until each demand life made was filled,
And every life, in active purpose skilled.

On our thought journey down thru the ages, we meet some very shocking incongruities, which cause one to think there must be something wrong with the working hypotheses of nature, more especially in the "Inhumanity of man to man," caused, however, by the unscrupulous conduct of Divinely ordained Kings and their minions in Priestly garbs.

Ecclesiastical tyranny has cursed the world for many centuries; those inhuman monstrosities seem to have been handed down from the degenerate element of a pagan past, who could only understand God as a monster of jealous cruelty.

During all of those dark ages when gibbet, dungeon and pyre were the punishment for heresy, many a brave soul like the illustrious Bruno, who tried to turn the current of thought into purer channels, were sacrificed upon those demoniac inventions of torture. This being true, can anyone claim that the world has presented but one Redeemer? Our present civilization, if indeed it can be considered civil, is indebted to many thousand redeemers for whatever freedom it enjoys.

The physical powers, even up to date, use every cruel means at their command to keep the intelligence of the masses in check, so as to promote fraudulent personal schemes. How much longer will the populace tolerate such divinely foolish rot, in the name of law and gospel coming from degenerates?

Thus we swing upon the pendulum of progress, however, from one decade to that of another, mixed with the adulterated and adulterer, until at length, we are equalized in cosmic consciousness. The present age has arisen to the independence of its time, we are born a new people, and must prepare to take our seat in the congress of the world, where all will have a voice in the lawful regulation of society, in its international relation to all races.

Prophets, Seers, Magicians and Savants have come with every age and race, by whose spiritual enlightenment much suffering has been prevented. India and Egypt gave to the world masters in spiritual art, whose astonishing magical power attracted to their shores, many truth seekers from every country, whose returning voices have awakened thousands.

Greece sent forth the genius of her soul in Art, Music, Poetry, Philosophy and Song, and the fame of her great masters inspire the world's thinkers with admiration for her genius today.

France combined all her spiritual graces in the beautiful Maid of Orleans, who communed with the Arch-Angel Michael, and under its influence took control of the French army and saved her country from British rule, the story of which has clothed French history in inspirational glory.

Spain's beautiful gifted presence, retired to the inner Spain when Roman tyranny and church rule overran her empire, and buried her diadem of art and beauty in the tombs of national materialism.

Judea immortalized her name by giving to the world Jesus, the son of the spirit in the great mystic of Galilee, who seemed to be the last outpouring of a fond mother's soul to her doomed children; in his presence, however, the spirit of Judea was resurrected. He was more than a Prophet or Reformer. He was the soul embodiment of that Nation and the voice of her people, who for so many long years cried aloud to their God for deliverance, from wrongs imposed by a corrupt Priesthood and alien usurpers from the Roman Empire. He was indeed the new Israel, the new link in the great chain of advancing forces, uniting the past with the present in a bond of sympathetic acknowledgment, of the "Brotherhood of man and Fatherhood of God," when the least will be protected as part of the whole, which is the only salvation possible, here or elsewhere.

All this confusion thru which the world has passed, in total contra-distinction to truth, may be necessary to develop a conscious consideration for the undeveloped portion of formative life—as the least life, has occasion to suffer, all will suffer in a comparative degree.

Cradled in superstition and iconoclassed by the psychological impressions of ages, people remain lost in doubt and fear, hence hug to their bosom many idiosyncrasies of their ancestry; the majority carry a great load of false and useless toggery in the form of ideas, customs and beliefs which they strive to mix with what truths are found. Therefore adulteration and confusion follow and hinder their progress.

Out from this labyrinth of false and useless humbuggery, the best minds of the present are blazing their way, and step by step, are measuring the mental altitude leading to a more beautiful concept of life, and all are moving toward a higher civilization in which man can be a friend to man, no matter what his color, country or race may be, and all life, either animal, human or divine, will be considered sacred and every possible consideration will be given to their care and advancement.

Knowledge is a universal product, on which no one, nor set of ones, can get a corner; those who care to develop their mind, let them be white, black or tan, the way of attainment is open to them from the spiritual side of their being, if they will unlock the door, at any time and at any age. Spirit does not recognize the limitations of sense; it is ever now. The present is ever in touch with its demands; therefore, the past cannot prescribe what it shall or shall not do, or how it will use what it finds. The forces of the present are prepared for greater things than the past was able to consider.

The highest solar elements, which are purely spiritual, regulate the action of minor elemental forces in their influence over worlds and the life inhabiting them. It has been truly said, "Those whom the Gods protect, no power on earth or in heaven can injure." They are the children of destiny, born to fill an important part in the world history. Soul, Spirit and Mind are the essence of all life, either elemental, spiritual or human, and when united, they constitute two individual principles, the Divine man, or Atma, and Infinite God, from whom all proceed and to which they return.

The great Solar angels (Arch-Angels) and minor elemental groups, constitute the diversified channels, between visible and invisible life, from God, to man, on down to the remotest atom life in the universe; all of which are perfected in the Divine Atma (Perfected Man), making an unbroken chain of intelligent life, in varied forms of the One, great life God; becoming more and more radiant, as it all ascends the scale of conscious Onement; inbreathing the perfection that measures the train of still more advanced life, which must have taken eons of time to measure.

The male and female principles, when united on the soul and mental planes, pure love born of God, will generate worlds and systems of worlds and people them with beings, beautiful as Gods, and truth borne upon the breast of genius, will transmute the coarse to finer quality and triumph over all error.

It is necessary to understand solar science, if success in life is desired; the solar angels are the executive force of nature and laboratory of occult research, where the student finds the key to his Alchemical discoveries; they inspire the Author, the Speaker and Inventor, they assist the Scientist, awaken Genius and carry important thought waves from one point to another; in fact, they are the messengers of God and recording angels of heaven, moving under influence of Divine power for good in regulating justice and harmony throughout the cosmos.

Air, East and Spring denote a trinity of light in which the child of genius is conceived, to be born of the (Virgin), pure elemental substance, while the earth is passing thru the house of Cynabriel (realm of pure light), and can correctly be called the wonderful works of God.

During this century, the supreme elements belonging to the solar system are combined in preparing the mundane forces of earth for a higher civilization. Therefore, severe and sudden changes may be expected, also disastrous elemental disturbances. The march of science will destroy the citadels and teachings of crude minds on all public questions; Science, Reason and Philosophy will go hand in hand to establish a pure religion and economic relation between all countries.

The downfall of nations, dethronement of Kings and Priestly power, their dogmas and creeds, uprising of the people to rule and govern their own industrial affairs and free themselves from national slavery; exploits of courage; achievement of genius; opening of the water channels of the world; the construction of new ones; the rising of lost continents from the ocean; the finding of hidden and buried treasures; exploration of the seas, oceans and lakes, where great wealth will be found and beds of precious jewels be discovered; production of new species of animal and vegetable life; transportation of thought without wires; aerial navigation; electric navigation and transportation, doing away with the cumbersome railroad system that has become such a nuisance; vibratory carriers and cultivators of land, when one acre will produce more than ten and thousands will be made productive in a few days.

All these, will startle the world with their rapid coming and shake the foundation of the present corrupt Systems, Kingdoms and Empires before the middle of this century; the twentieth century will be marked by the greatest changes in the life of this world; we are moving with lightning speed towards grander realization and higher civilization.

All these prophesies were written for this work, twelve years before its publication by the Author. The MS. has been burned twice and re-written each time, without alteration of the subject which suggested its production. Many of these inventions have already occurred and many more will soon follow. It is natural that the more perfect anything is, the faster it moves; therefore, what we have discovered is but an incentive to greater discoveries, the law of attraction is more tense as the vibrations reach a deeper realm, the forces there are awakened and take part in the wonderful psychic exhibition, adding their strength to what is already active, until a powerful wave of thought force and motion sweep all before it; we are in the period of reconstruction in which the old will be remodeled to the new; the substance is not changed, but the form must be, so as to meet the present requirements more universally needed to bring greater results.

As we rise from race-contact of slumbering ages,
And the tinsel robed mockery of royalties' time,
To find we have lived, while ages rolled o'er us,
In human form, not conscious that all are divine,

How sad is the retrospect, when mind has awakened,
To know of our errors, when our powers are sublime.
We have builded around us, strong walls of debasement
And are shocked, when confronted by each passing crime.

Can we build for the better, while past thought control us?
Or break through those barriers and bastiles of time?
And remove all the glitter and sham that surround us,
To live as immortals, without vice or false shrine.

The wisdom of nations, during all the past ages,
Should come at our call, our command or our sign,
To remove all the errors which slumber has caused us,
While we build for the future, at harmonies' shrine.

CHAPTER II.

Explanations Regarding the Forces of the Four Elemental Kingdoms in Their Regular Order.

The elements of air known as Sylphs, correspond to Spring and East, denoting growth and progress, power and wisdom; they are classed as the head and brain of the solar organism, and to a great extent control the forces of the other three kingdoms, often changing their motive and manners of manifestation; they are wise in council and powerful in motion; pure in compound, harmonious and beautiful; they are always a friend to man and will assist him if possible; they have been sought by every spiritual seer during every age for assistance and knowledge, those beautiful forces are the inspiration of genius and the impulse of cosmic thought, and are also the message-bearers to all planes of manifesting life, as well, as to and from our spirit friends and our God; bringing hope and love to every creature.

The Writer, Speaker, Inventor and Poet, Composer and Songster, can cultivate their influence to credit; they will flow from the speaker's lips in inspirational thought and aspirational hope, the glory of their presence starting waves of emotional enthusiasm, which sometimes cause revolutionary movements; people are imbued with thought and act upon its impulse; they also control the writer's pen to express greater wisdom; swift as light and deep as the universe, God's angel messengers, never failing in their mission of love to the world. They portray the possible power in man, by the eagle's flight, repeating in nature's language, "Come on! We have given to you genius, to the eagle only wings. Why do you tarry? Build and come; we will take you to greater heights than common things can know."

These celestial forces, bear us upon their snow white wings to our heaven, to our God; trust them, they will not betray nor disappoint, for they are the light of consciousness and the vehicle of the soul, covering our faults and illuminating our good qualities, moving only in conscious order of supreme power and Divine love, as heavenly missionaries, producing harmony upon all plains of life.

The Arch-Angel of air is entitled Cynabriel, and its messengers are Michael and Gabriel, under the influence of these, are myriads of angelic forces which are intelligent and powerful; blessed indeed, are those who are conscious of the assistance of this center of divine forces in nature, which represent the law and control all the mystic powers of the cosmos.

The elements of fire are known as Salamanders, corresponding to South and Summer; they represent love, purity and production; they belong to the heart of the cosmos, and denote the efeminate quality in nature; they are also powerful and beautiful; the mundane part of them, however, are often swayed by human desire and ambition, qualities that control the human intellect, either for good or otherwise; they are dual in nature, however, and to the extent they can bless, so can they destroy, unless under influence of higher orders of force. Their real mission is to produce and supply all things necessary for the welfare of material life, also to purify and assimilate atmospheric entities, give physical endurance, courage and aspiration, and change material expression to spiritual life; they also enthuse leaders and direct public activity, create wealth, give health, happiness and success.

These forces produce all manifestation in line with physical demand; the following quotation is true, "As earth demands, heaven supplies." Therefore thru knowledge of divine law, men will overcome the necessity of physical labor and its slow way of doing things. Inventive genius will supply the missing link which should be man's servant. The Arch-Angel of this department is entitled Tubriel, its messengers and controlling forces are Gargatel, Terriael and Gavel, stellar centers of elemental force, that regulate the expression of their department; they are in a measure subject to the higher forces and move at times in similar channels, yet their characteristics are clearly defined as belonging to their own department, they are prudent and will not obey the mystic unless he has gained their confidence; once this is done, however, he will have no more difficulty in causing them to serve him.

The elements of earth, correspond to West and Autumn, and are entitled Gnomes; they belong to the kingdom of form, as animal, vegetable and mineral. There are four grades of these interesting entities, known as Gnomes, Elfs, Imps and Sprites, all of which are transmutable to form of every kind; they belong in the kingdom where they dwell and are often seen among human beings and love to seem of importance; being the spirits of manifestation from their composition is made up the forms of every material life; as Professor Denton puts it: "They are the soul of things," yes, and the body also, for without them life could not inhabit the earth.

The Arch-Angel of this department is entitled Tubriel, meaning rosy light; its sphere of action is mundane; its mission is to prepare the way for higher forces, regulate and protect earthly resources and treasures, care for mortal life while making the transit from one form to that of another, or from the material to spiritual spheres.

This is the department in nature, where the student of the occult finds assistance to reach higher spheres, or to perfect any mechanical device, by which the more subtle forces can be captured, or find minerals, buried money, stolen goods, or anything that the earth contains.

Oh! man, will you ever become wise, while you labor in unconsciousness and deny all but what you see, and that changes every second? hence you are foiled and betrayed by your sense claims.

The elements of water represent North and Winter, corresponding to change, dissolution, construction and reconstruction; they are the iconoclassed of nature's forces and also the universal saviors of systems, suns, planets, worlds, nations and men.

The Arch-Angel of this department is known to the eastern adept as the Prince of the Deep; it has more than one name, among them as follows: Icon, Vorcon—Rex and Jehovah, the elemental entities of this center of force, are entitled Nymphs; the messengers or stellar lights are Atwise and Andries; these regulate the movements of all the minor forces of their house; their mission is to change and dissolve the prevailing forms of material life and prepare others more suitable for them to manifest; they are nature's untiring workers and the mystic can do little without their influence; they belong to the fourth dimension of space and through their assistance one can appear or disappear at will, which is perhaps, the greatest occult fete accomplished while in the body and unless thoroughly understood, is the most dangerous.

It was this solar God the Israelites worshipped, believing it to be the Infinite Spirit. Moses, Joshua and David evidently had some knowledge of solar law, acquired during their sojourn in Egypt; therefore, they were able to control some of these elemental forces and assume unusual power; those of later date, however, made the mistake of using these forces, as a means to destroy their supposed enemies, and by so doing, finally destroyed themselves, after establishing a false system of worship.

Those of the present who continually seek phenomena, without the knowledge of nature, or the philosophy underlying manifestation, or the difference between these intelligent forces that can assume any form presented to them, and the presence of their departed friends, are making the same mistake, and will some day regret their error.

It were better people should remain with the material, until they can understand the invisible, rather than presume to attain spiritual spheres, loaded with the sensational desires of the flesh, or accept phenomena presented by other persons, only so far as is necessary to establish interest in the work.

People should not remain ignorant, however, of the different forces that mingle with their earth life, for to understand them is of great importance to man.

None of the elementals in nature, mundane or otherwise, act with any impure motive, unless under control of impure thought; of their own volition, they move only under demand of necessity as evolutionary regulators, or by concentrated demand of a developed human mind. Many things are laid to the gods, spirits and damons, that originate in human hearts and minds, by which persons are hypnotized by their own foolishness and imagine things as real, when only momentary creations of their own mental desire.

The four elemental kingdoms with their combined trinities and quadruples, constitute the elements of the solar system, presented by planets, suns, worlds and satellites; they are also the substance of every form of life upon them, which fact enable each life to manifest its intention and finally assimilate every grade of formative life to the possibility of spirit, also transmute material planes to spiritual spheres, and human forms to spiritual beings, in which Love, Wisdom and Spiritual Power combine in producing effects.

We will classify them so as to make them more easily understood: First, is the trinity of mind, or light (Air, East and Spring); second, is the trinity of soul (Fire, South and Summer); third, is the trinity of form (Earth, West and Autumn); fourth, is the trinity of spirit (North, Water and Winter); these twelve expressions of the elements, demonstrate the possibility in nature to materialize every manner of life, whenever manifestation is necessary; the four elemental departments, then, are the super-substance of infinite intelligent force, that sustain and regulate the solar universe, which may correctly be called, God in nature, known as Eloim; they are the corner-stones, substance and design, from which the indwelling Spirit, has built the superstructure of the temple, thru which the wholly spirit flows out to manifest a more and more, complete expression of the whole life known as God, and again retires to concentrate and generate forces, so as to produce more abundantly, having in its completeness the Allness of one existing, all pervading, ever present potentialities of being, infinite in numbers and supreme in power.

God, the infinite intelligent source of life, could not separate from the life it has produced; all are a part of its composition and thru a well established law, the very least, will have an opportunity to perfect its life thru its experience, and again reach the parent life, where unsurpassed blessing await its return.

Would God, the author of all this grand universe, which is incomprehensible to man, be less mindful of its children than man? What man could damn his child and send it to everlasting hell? God knew before the child was born of its destiny and could have prevented if necessary. Such false teachings are nothing less than the insane ravings of an idiot, or else the scheme of an unscrupulous mind.

Hope the reader will pardon us for straying from the subject.

With understanding of the elemental resource in nature, it is in man's power to be what he wills to be, if he chooses to conform to nature's higher law; not only that, but change his environment, position and personal appearance, complimentary to his advanced ideas and in full conformity with natural law, and by understanding the fourth dimension of space, he can be or not be, at will, which will give him an understanding of the phenomenal appearing and disappearing of spirit forms, now termed spirit manifestation; which could not obtain, were it not for the elemental character and composition of the mediums' form.

By understanding the primary laws of nature, which are elemental, and the method of adjusting them to personal demands thru mental chemistry, one will find that he is not only a personal, but also a universal being; he will then begin at once to be humane, by being kind to every creature having life and the lower in the scale of unfoldment he finds it, the more love and tenderness he will extend to it; we will find God in the least as well as in the greatest expressions of life. This is true wisdom.

The personality must surrender its sensational desires to the higher demands of soul and judgment, if one wishes to be master, first of himself, then of the many invisible, or even the visible forces in nature which approach his material habitation.

The world with its tremendous seeming, cannot deceive or injure, nor even give him honors, only the knowledge of true worth and the result of well doing, that gives such a soul happiness.

The secrets of nature must be sought and won by effort, either from the elements of spiritual beings, by a full surrender of sense claims to spiritual requirements, so as to overcome unconscious errors and false tendencies. Nature is secretive and those whom she trusts with her secrets, must be worthy of her confidence. One may deceive self or others, but he cannot deceive nature, and we advise him not to try, because he will surely pay the penalty.

Those supreme elemental centers of cause, are again divided into two hemispheres, corresponding to the dual nature of man as a spiritual and mental being; the eastern hemisphere, encircles the soul and spiritual plane, thru which the mind comes in touch with the first two great Angels of God, manifest as fire and air, by which the attributes of aspiration and inspiration are developed, giving him influence, courage and confidence; when he has reached this stage, he will attract and receive more knowledge from greater minds and more divine sources, until he has accomplished the fulfillment of his aspirations.

More perfect development of the human mind depends largely on the cultivation and use made of the spiritual attributes; aspiration, must first make its appearance thru effort, inspiration surely follows, affirmation is the outgrowth of the first two, concentration becomes a necessity of the three, reflection constructs and holds them in order, inhalation and exhalation completes the power, puts the rest to work and keeps them busy.

These attributes are latent in every human mind and when developed, establish the three divine gifts of the wholly spirit; i. e., love, wisdom and power, by which results are successfully accomplished, a fact, which places one in the position of master and unites him with the interior and exterior universe, where he is conscious of every vibration and hope of all the beautiful life that surrounds him, and this again puts him in touch with more advanced souls, that are able to sustain and give him consciousness of his true relation to God, of whom he is the counter-part and son of light, in a world of form and change.

The western hemisphere is related to Intellect, Spirit and Form; the forces belong to the kingdom of water and earth; these elements embody the thought, motive and intention of life, therefore both kingdoms are required in the development of material life; they being changeable and transmutable in substance, make it possible to reconstruct the old and useless, into the new and useful, giving human life, the advantage of inducing nature to provide more abundantly for what it requires; therefore we find that as soon as one kind of substance goes out of use, another more adapted to the present need makes its appearance, proving that nature is always ready to supply new demands made upon her resource.

There is not the least expression of particled matter, but what has its spiritual counterpart in elemental substance, or affinite unit, on the invisible side of nature, where it belongs, and all are associated with still higher intelligences, which exalt their motive and change their intention, causing them to move directly or indirectly, thru chemical changes necessary to unfold the more beautiful designs latent in them. This same law causes human forms also, to pass thru the change called death, which will be overcome when nature's laws are understood and established.

Thus advanced, however, they are more intelligently associated with still higher and more perfected life, from greater spheres and more beautiful realms of light, inconceivable to us as yet. Forever onward and upward; sounds the choiring tones of nature's most perfect harmony, until we are lost in contemplation of God's wonderful glory, and our own great possibilities to unfold and enjoy the beautiful life within us, all our own, also that which surround us in various expressions of beauty and usefulness.

The material form of any life does not remain the same for the remotest part of a second; it is undergoing constant change, unfolding from center to exterior, as a rose unfolds its petals, so does all life develop its majestic form, until at length it presents the divine Atma, in relative perfection with God; then, all the forces of one's being vibrate in harmony with the super-conscious mind and will, having no desire but universal good.

Remember that any circumstance, relation or association that lead to inharmonious mingling of elemental entities, lead also to difficulty; therefore one should carefully select his own garments and associates, and be sure they fit his special needs; if not, they will cause trouble; each one should live, think and be, according to his own consciousness, regardless of other people's opinion, only insofar as to keep harmony always established.

Begin to build for more knowledge, greater wisdom and power, and remember there is no circumstance that can hinder your advancement, unless of your own will, you place something in the way that you cannot remove; do not let inclinations rule you, affirm your superiority when you rise in the morning and bless your forces before retiring at night; go to your work, whatever it may be, with success and confidence at your side and all will be well.

CHAPTER III.

Explanation Regarding the First Elemental Department.

There are four of these departments in the solar organism, known as houses, the central forces of which are supreme in power, intellegent and Godlike in nature, yet subject to the will of a highly developed human being. The Arch-Angel ruling in the first department, entitled Cynabriel, is the medium thru which Infinite mind reaches every expression of life, visible or invisible, and in its material aspect denotes East, Air and Spring; thru this source, inspiration, knoweldge and genius flows from Infinitely exalted intelligences on more advanced planes, to human life.

The Angel messengers of this house are Michael and Gabriel; these stellar lights contain numberless forces, so rare in quality as to illuminate all planes over which they move; we class them as the subjective forces of the solar house to which they belong; being cosmic in nature, however, they are not limited to their own sphere, instead, move under order of supreme power, as evolutionary and revolutionary regulators in the advancement of human life and in preparing the way for higher manifestation; they impart knowledge and clear understanding to those by whom they are attracted.

When one has arisen, To where he understands natural law and the character of the elements which produce manifestation, not only the world, but the heavens also are his.

Those supreme elemental forces, regulate and protect all life while passing thru experiences on material planes, necessary to their greatest mental and spiritual development; they are indeed the messengers of God to material life, proclaiming in advance of coming events and preparing the way for them to manifest; which has been told in the mystical words of the author, as follows: "Coming events cast their shadows before." When human thought is regulated so that it will not dethrone reason and intelligence, people will be capable of foretelling coming events, as nature intended they should, and thus be prepared to meet them in proper manner and save a vast amount of suffering.

The solar influences are unceasing in executive energy, and move directly to places, persons or things needing their assistance, and carry out their mission with unerring certainty; therefore, to be able to attract their attention and special assistance is worth more than gold, which every master will acknowledge.

True knowledge and wisdom are found only in nature's school; those who study her scriptures become wise; she develops the mind while opening the door to greater knowledge and unrevealed truth.

One desiring such knowledge, however, must live true to the natural self and not mix with error; consciousness retires whenever the mind is adulterated with falsehood.

The conscious mind is in a position to adjust personal environments, providing the common-mind is not loaded with false ideas. There are two ways by which people fashion their material dwelling place; one, by seeking sensuous pleasures, which lead to delusion and failure; the other by seeking mental and spiritual unity, these lead to success and happiness; examine them carefully and make your choice, for by their results you must stand or fall.

The elements of every demand are attracted or repulsed, by the thought and motive they meet; therefore if success is desired, these must be regulated with judgment.

Wisdom and knowledge are the fruits of right thinking and living; it is worth one's while to obtain them, when they come, many blessings follow; people seem to have lost sight of this great truth, in the mad scramble for the dollar, while depending upon a mythical personality to save them, altho nature has surrounded them with every blessing God can bestow.

Were it not for the superior advantages the present offers, in the way of literature and travel, people would still hug their mythical Gods, dogmas and Creeds, to remain lost in superstition, bigotry and doubt and gravitate to the animal plane.

Unless elemental laws are understood in every detail, one need not look for ideal states of being; the primary lessons should be understood, if we expect advancement towards greater illumination or a higher state of being.

Thousands of years before the Christian era, religion was understood as a natural law and became an art, scientifically demonstrated by the great Adepts of India and Hicrophants of Egypt, who were able to reduce the elements, to the natural requirements of the material man, reducing physical labor to a minimum, and were also able to answer the most profound questions relating to invisible life, with logic and reason, which the cold skeleton of orthodoxy has never been able to do, nor has it been in a position to demonstrate any of the higher sciences, as was required by Jesus. Instead, it has kept its disciples in ignorance and superstition, because of its animalism and deception, which has been its downfall.

Sun-lit with spiritual illumination for ages, India became clothed in mystery to the vulgar mind of the Western intruder, by which she guarded the wisdom of her sages from adulteration and heterodoxy; the sincere student, however, who journeyed hither to gain wisdom, returned with profound knowledge of nature and the Divine principle of God in man, which he brought to the new world, as the sacred and revealed doctrine of nature, and the therapeutic power in man, which has saved the present age from spiritual death. In honor to her divine wisdom we bow the head.

Egypt, that country where flows the sacred waters of the Nile, seems to have fallen from her high estate, a prey to pagan powers, ignorance and degenerating forces, in which one would think she had lost her soul. We find, however, thru those centuries of detention, she has retained in her Mosques and Crypts sacred records inscribed upon her marble-like rock the history of a once great peoples; she is indeed rightfully called the "Daughter of India and Mother of Science." Upon her bosom was nursed the critical Philosopher, whose knowledge of universal chemistry, has penetrated the ages down to the present, and has kept the soul light of the world burning, and has also become a factor in the mental and spiritual development of every age and race; from her great Pyramids the Astronomer watched with sleepless eyes the approach of heavenly bodies, and the Astrologer never failed to calculate their time and influence over other planets, and the life upon them, as one after another, recorded the history of coming events, upon the solar organism; the Geologist, foretold of internal and external disturbances that were to occur; the Cosmologist, Archiologist and Psychronologist, as well as other natural scientists, have all left an indelible record upon her Sphinx-like tombs, as the history of her buried past.

Egypt may silently sleep for a day (six thousand years), thru the influence of cause and effect, but she will rise again more glorious than before, to shine anew, as the eastern star of knowledge, in the mind and heart of coming generations, who will understand her inner wisdom and figurative language.

The people of the western world have not yet understood the humane commandments inscribed in hieroglyphics upon the stone in Egypt, thousands of years before Moses graced the earth, who was but the interpreter, instead of the originator of what has been called the Mosaic Law; he being a seer, however, together with the knowledge gained of those people while in that country, he was able to translate the language to Hebrew, and gained renown thereby.

Those in the Mosaic Law, as well as many more not mentioned, were accepted in the East, as the foundation of righteous living, ages before the Christian Bible was ever heard from; many things related in that book, credited to the Hebrews, were taken from Indian and Egyptian records. All can be found in the Upanishads and Vedas of India, Avesta of Persia and even in the Chinese Imperial records.

Metinks the Christians will have to write another Bible, that will relate true historic facts, if they wish to save theology from the dump; we understand, however, this is being done in rather small doses. The disciples having swallowed large quantities of another kind, may not accept the new style, become frightened and quit; they are already beginning to know how foolish they were, and are demanding truth instead of fiction.

Is it any wonder that the Seers and Prophets of the past were persecuted, as well as the Spirit Mediums of the present? They evidently know and see too much, for the credit of divinely ordained imposters, either ancient or modern.

All down the line of human unfoldment, we find a record of spirit forces, inspiring and leading mortals towards better results. Inspired Sages and Prophets, have ever been in the lead of human progress, and their names stand untainted as a reference for coming generations to follow. Thousands of years have not erased their philosophy or names from the annals of history, even tho in many instances it may not meet the practical demand of the present thinker.

An interesting story is related in the Bible, regarding the "Wise men of the East," coming to Judae to find the child Jesus, which Christians claim to be a miracle; the circumstance was not a miracle, however, instead, was an Astrological calculation of planetary influence over material life. In the same manner, the Astrologer of the present should calculate like circumstance.

Many centuries before the Christian era, even long before Moses' time, in the eastern nations, the solar sciences were compulsory in the education of those chosen as leaders of the people, either in the capacity of King, Emperor or even Spiritual Advisor. It might be a wise move, were American statesmen compelled to do likewise; we might get rid of monkey hunters, war promoters and dictators, thus bring more harmony into our industrial affairs.

The Star of Bethlehem belongs to the eastern constellation, and is not visible to the earth, only at intervals of two thousand years, denoting by its attitude decided changes in the order of solar bodies, which herald the approach of some new phenomenon; those versed in astrology will understand the character of the phenomena and can tell the time and place of its appearance, as well as what it signifies to the world; which is no miracle, but rather a correct mathematical calculation of planetary movements.

"The Wise men," making their calculations from the position of the star and the sign which it appeared in, knew that a master should come to Judae at a certain date; they believed he was ordained of God (Born of the Spirit), to rule over Israel, as the rightful heir to the throne; all of which the science of Astrology clearly defines and as was the custom for centuries in the east, they came as the planetary angel directed, to pay their respects to the young Monarch, whom they believed would taken his Kingdom, lead his people out of bondage, and become a power for good in Asia Minor, which thru a corrupt Priesthood, Roman tyranny and misrule, had become a menace to civil powers.

Those Eastern Kings understood the conditions existing in Jerusalem during that period, and were concerned about the welfare of the child, soon to be recognized as Heir to the throne, being surrounded by a vicious plutocracy and usurpers from the Roman Empire, His life might be in danger. Thru their influence, Jesus was taken by his parents into Egypt, from there to Tibet, India, where he remained under training of the great masters of that country, until prepared for the position He should fill.

Years later when Jesus returned to His people, He evidently had wealth and was highly cultured, His garments were of silk and fine linen, embroidered in gold, according to Emperial custom in the East; they were of so rare a quality, that the Roman soldiery divided them as trophy for their part in His murder, which proves that His death was not the will of God, for the salvation of sinners, as the Christians claim; instead, was the direct result of fraud, jealousy and crime, committed by those, who through graft, held positions of state, under Roman misrule.

The same has occurred and will again, in this glorious Christian-nation to any person or persons, who through sense of justice, dare to expose the present impotent political graft and fraud of existing Romanians in American bodies, satellites of European monarchy, posing as Christian Statesmen, who care more for the lust of gold, than they do for God or human souls.

The Star of Bethlehem has appeared again at the close of the nineteenth century, and was visible at Denver, Colorado, for several days: its appearance was announced by a noted French Astronomer, Comeia Flamarian. We had the pleasure of seeing it from the observatory at Denver, and also to note what followed; i. e., Eastern occultism and spiritual science swept the continent from ocean to ocean; spirit phenomena so convincing as to make doubt impossible followed. Everywhere could be heard the inquiry from thoughtful people, which brought a response from the Scientist, Writer, Lecturer and the Press.

The Commercialized sectarian church trembled upon its false foundation, knowing how completely it has failed in giving to the people the message of love intrusted to its care by that wonderful man, the Master of Galilee.

The Christian Science movement, started and established by a woman; which has broken the solidarity of the orthodox churches and stricken the chains which Pauline Christianity placed upon her intellect, captured

New thought and mental science have destroyed the morbid belief in two dominant powers, God and Devil, contending with each other for possession of the human soul. Again they attack the claims of materia medica, that has cursed the race by its unwarranted practice. Therapeutics has already changed the drug-store into an ice-cream and lemonade resort, and caused the M. D.'s to seek protection from the courts, as a special privilege to their guild.

Next comes a reconstructive movement established by workingmen, which has attacked the false position of capitalism, a system of commercial graft, more dangerous and destructive to life and freedom, than any King-cursed institution of the past, and in their effort are gaining every point.

It has been truly said, "Old things will pass away and the new will take their place." All these, together with the mechanical discoveries of this age, mark a striking epoch in the history of the present, proving that the Angel Gabriel (star of Bethlehem), has proclaimed to the wise men of today also, of the changes which will occur, also the character of each movement, powerful enough in itself, to sweep the path of science, awaken human consciousness and destroy the formations, ignorance and superstition have established; yet in all this manifestation of power there is no miracle, only a very natural law of evolution and revolution.

People have awakened at last from traditional mimicry and are demanding proof, "show me" is the thought of the present. Who would live in the past, when the glorious present is ours?

Fashion your life to the mode and thought of your time and build your future from the elements of the now; let your soul rise with them. The soul of genius is leading and the greatest advance movement the world has ever witnessed, swings the balance of power, by which all the dregs of the past will be swept away; then, Truth and Freedom will triumph over slavery and error.

When Columbus sailed the forbidden seas, he was imprisoned and accounted insane by superstitious egos; when Benjiman Franklin chained the lightning, the churches trembled, and Morse was considered in league with Satan; when Fulton harnessed the stream, people ran into their cellars, thinking the end of the world had come; when Edison mimicked the opera, he was called unnatural. Now Tesla climbs the ether and gossips with Mars, while moss-covered minds cross themselves and cry, "what next?" Well, right along comes Marconi sending his message flying through the air, from ocean to ocean, capturing every steamer, giving them the morning news; again come the aeronauts too numerous to mention, sailing thru the air like birds upon the wing.

Indeed, if the Christians do not look to their claims, we will have captured heaven, poured the waters of the universe in upon hell, and spoiled their whole scheme of salvation.

All these advance minds, however, are the manifest genius of the past, supposed to be slumbering in the tombs of the old world and their resurrection has caused tyrants to tremble and bigotry to seek a hiding place.

Genius cannot be entombed, it will rise again like a brilliant star, more beautiful than before, to shine upon the brow of the present Genius, who will continue the work of reconstruction, until we feel the thrill of pure emotion from pole to pole and from continent to continent and perhaps from planet to planet. If indeed, any persons have ever been divinely ordained, nature surely placed the golden seal upon their brow and to them we can do honor, for they lead us to the understanding and glory of nature's God, and the beautiful forces that surround us, emanating from every planet, sun and center of elemental life, all of which speak with language more potent than any book conceived or written by the hand of man, and thru their assistance as we struggle up the mount of progress, the brazen image of greed and gold will be broken, suffering and hardship will be unknown, the sweet notes of harmony with all her interesting variety of accompaniments, will taken their place.

With power of mind and soul developed, we can climb the heights of Aerion and capture the Golden City; who dare question our right? Fear and doubt will vanish in company with the devil and hell, then on the wings of love we can fly to our heaven, to our Savior and our God, where joy and peace fills every thought.

The supreme elements of East fill every avenue of life, with emanations of beautiful life, inspiring the Songster, Poet, Composer and Author, imprinting upon the mental protoplasm, the scenery of a better world; thus we are impressed as we term it, with a greater consciousness of life from which we strive to remold into our earth life more grace and beauty.

How oft among the stars we rise to view,
The God life there, amidst the ether blue,
The starry realm of souls, ablaze with life,
In raiment new, softly gleaming as the dew
White as the lily's unblemished hue,
With God to dwell awhile, in love so true,
We must return, to tell of its love for you.

No prosy language, in words can tell,
The story of this angelic life so well,
As the Poet's pen, or the scribe who feels
Its fiery touch, that o'er his senses steals,
Like sweetest music from a distant shore,
Enchanted, stilled, he solves its lore,
Which the mystic notes to his senses bore.

CHAPTER IV.

The Forces of the Interchanging Heavens, With Their Numerous Angels, Arch-Angels, Powers, Systems, Suns, Planets and Worlds, are Man's Inheritance, and it is His Birthright to Become Their Master.

The heavens hold no power that man cannot equal, or earth no hidden sources, he cannot discover; the only thing necessary for him to obtain what he requires is, the development of all his nature, which is three-fold, i. e., spiritual, mental and physical; these must be equalized before any great amount of power obtains; which can only be accomplished by giving up sensational pleasures and desires, false appetites and habits. One should bathe in cold water mornings, to strengthen the will, stimulate the Brain and awaken Genius; this done, saves years of trouble.

Every spiritual teacher the world has known, who demonstrated power over sense expression in any manner, were students of solar law and adepts in elemental science and mental chemistry; how they became such: they simply lived natural lives and by doing so, developed their attributes and became cosmic-conscious souls.

The power which Jesus demonstrated by multiplying the loaves and fishes, is an ordinary demonstration of the Hindoo faker, who will tell you that he can do nothing of himself, but through the assistance of his genii, meaning spirit guide, walking on the water, and changing water to wine, also also done thru knowledge of elemental chemistry, and the East Indian Adept can do so at any time.

We witnessed a demonstration at Palmer Lake, Colorado, where a gentleman bared his feet and crossed the lake several times, in presence of over a thousand people; all these and many more can easily be done, when one is prepared and understand the nature of the elements he is dealing with and how to control them, once confidence is established between the forces of nature and the operator.

The advanced thought of today is based upon knowledge, not belief, and is proving religion to be scientific and practical in every line of industry, as well as spirituality; every expression of production is an out-pouring of divine love in nature, responding to human effort. This new conception of religion has removed the theological scare devil, changed the locality of hell, and brought heaven into the hearts and consciousness of men. What a blessing to have such Priestly superstitions relegated to the past forever, and with them their trail of Priests, Doctors, Hospitals, Divinely ordained Kings, together with their jails, gallows, Penitentiaries, Almshouses and Charities, which they have established, all of which are the monstrosities of degenerate minds, deluded by sense and adulterated by base desires.

As we become more conscious of the truth, under all this personalized sham, we are becoming a law unto ourselves; without working to support such a lot of useless humbuggery.

The knowledge of cosmic law, gives a clear understanding of life, by which we can rise above man-made laws, their creeds and gospels, as well as the terrible and destructive institutions they have established; their devils and their hells, however, are woven into every expression they have builded and everything they have done; until society, both industrial and religious, is an angular demonstration of a monstrous falsehood, in which the present uncivilization has established its doom. Out from those dire superstitions the human family are finding thir way to a full understanding of truth. Yes, we have discovered a better way all our own, which cannot be bought with gold, nor cornered by any corporation, not even a religious one.

The truth we wish to present, however, is that this invisible power in nature and which is also potent in man, has been demonstrated by every Spiritual Master, Jesus and others, long before and since His Time, even presently by many, is natural and very possible to a ny one, if he chooses to live the life necessary to unfold his spiritual nature.

“The works that I do, shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my father.”

Yes, of course we will; we have the influence of a new cycle, in which soul, mind and spirit are united as one center of cosmic unity and power, a much more advanced age; our ideals, literature, schools and colleges are of a higher standard, and our mothers are educated the same as our fathers, our opportunities for travel and development are greater; new methods of commerce and social intercourse obtain; we can travel with lightning speed and send our message wireless; we throb with the same impulse from continent to continent; indeed we have many an advantage, more than obtained at Jesus' time, whose people were just beginning to leave their tribal cradle.

Jesus was the master link, however, between the old and the new cycle, that was to change the course of human events; He came on demand as the representative of the possibility in the future, to awaken people from their dense materialism; He really was, “the Way and the Life,” that brought many out of the darkness of sense unto death, into the consciousness of light—truth and life.

After many years of change and suffering, under the tyranny of physical powers, we have arrived at the beginning of another solar cycle, which again promise the departure of the old and installment of the new. Who will represent us to future generations?

This cycle denoting the union of mind and spirit, demands two, Woman and Man, or perhaps the principles and requirements of both, in the regulation of society; we have stepped bravely upon the threshold of a new era, in which it will be worth one's while to live; science and knowledge are leading, instead of theology and bigotry, both of which ruled the world at Jesus' time.

Oh! how blind you pulpeters have been, when you could not read the signs of the times; the foundation of your false creeds and dogmas, have crumbled at your feet, your personal Gods and small two-by-four-heaven, can no longer accommodate human intellect; If you are not careful, we will have made it convenient to travel hence on the wings of Air, and prove your mistake; which we have done already thru our developed spiritual gifts and mechanical genius.

In developed consciousness one realizes but one Infinite life, self existing and pervading substance, from which all manifest life attracts their vital energies; therefore to lose the personality in the prevailing substance, is to have found thyself in its completeness. Begin at once to develop your natural attributes and establish them; no matter what your other duties may seem to be, they are secondary to those.

One cannot become master at once, or by chance; only by constant practice can one overcome the claims of sense and establish the will, which gives the mind power to understand what it finds.

All things thinkable to man are possible to him, providing, however, that he is a complete ray, eminent thru Infinite thought, with the divine possibilities of the originator, hence the Infinite source of success and happiness are personalized in man, and his first duty to himself and society is, search and find the Key. There is nothing in human nature more important than knowledge of the mental and spiritual power one is capable of unfolding, by following the simple rule: eat, drink, think, sleep and do, according to the demand of the higher self, regardless of what the personality may think about it; as soon as this is done, the conditions which bound the personal, will change and greater opportunity will appear, until every molecule vibrates with power.

Spiritual penetration illumines the vision and the eyes are lit with the sacred fire, which does not recognize limitation and illuminates the presence, in which one can truly say, I have found my real self, in which the unrevealed cosmos is made clear. When one remains lost in the personality, he gains nothing worth having and all his dross will be buried in the tomb with the body.

Rise now and win your inheritance; do not hesitate lest you be lost. The most important advice we can give is, when called upon for any purpose, do not hesitate, but do what is required. One cannot afford to be found wanting; the power is not in the personality nor in the mind, but rather in the spirit of God, the Divine Atma (inner man), that responds to your effort, supplying the necessary power to accomplish your success. Either man or woman, following these rules, will find the key to nature's elemental resource.

He who holds the key to that sacred place,
No vulgar gaze of mortal eye can trace
The mystic entrance to his trysting place;
The rapid movements of mind and will,
Cause all surrounding forces to be still;
Or aid to manifest his higher will.

One thru thought, controls the mystic sprite,
Which directs each human soul aright;
To those who will to know, it points the way,
None who seek in truth, needs go astray,
When choosing to leave earth's senuous night
And learn the way, from the mystic sprite.

On life's eminence he will ever stand,
With vision clear as crystal waters strand,

Holding the mystic Key, all nature serves
The purpose, he, thru will, conserves,
His thought waves, nature's debt retrieves,
Thus thru silent thought, all darkness relieves.

The elements of everything is in the ether, all around, above and in you, ever present, all that is necessary to attract what you require, is the complete one-ness of thought, which is the condensing and materializing medium thru which the demand becomes potent.

Faith is the first product of knowledge; cultivate confidence in self, it is the first step to success; remove every habit; they darken the mind, crush aspiration and destroy energy.

The positive and negative principles (mind and soul), must unite in man before Genius is born, then he becomes a living soul. The achievements of Genius at present will do away with the limitations prescribed by the appearance of things. We have overcome distance and time; Water and Fire are already our servants; the elements of Earth and Air will soon surrender obedience and their treasures also. Mind and form, are the result of experience, the greater these are, the more perfect man becomes.

When Air is better understood, it will develop larger breathing power and unfold more grace of form and motion and enlarge the brain capacity, making man in reality, The Christ or Son of God and Lord over all material things. Having subdued nature and brought the heavens to meet the earth in one wholly bond of united action, transmuting the material to more spiritual substance and back again to more perfect form, in which all the divine attributes are active, man then becomes an immortal soul.

Mind and Soul, are cosmicly arranged centers and if not developed by proper use, they soon become latent; we are not of ourselves made whole, all take part in the building and should be benefited by the results.

We must yet learn to understand our God. It is true, we have pretended to worship an imaginary Deity, whom we feared instead of loved, therefore attracted destructive elements, by which our doom has been sealed. We are beginning to see our mistake, however, and the light of the present solar cycle, will establish very different conditions and manner of doing things.

Our grey-haired sires and mothers will not not go down to death with the stamp of disappointed hope upon their brow; instead, their golden days will be filled with pleasures corresponding to their matured years, and their wise counsels will be woven into the character of social and personal affairs. Nor will our maidens sell their bodies to the lust of human savages, for means to clothe and shelter them, nor will our young men become degenerate through associated habits, forced upon them in youth, by a degraded social and commercial system of industry and society; instead, public schools and colleges will be surrounded with beautiful and harmonious home environment, in which they will receive proper training for the duties they are by nature adapted, instead of the horrible cramming which they now receive, for the purpose only to make dollars and satisfy greed. Genius is forgotten, soul is not thought of, spirit is denied and the only thing considered is the training of the animal mind to where it can overcome some other person's effort and capture the prize, and this is named glorious competition, by grafters who consider nothing higher than personal gain.

CHAPTER V.

Explanations Regarding the Second Elemental Department of the Solar Organism.

The elementals belonging to the above named department, are known as Salamanders and are classed as the heart of the solar body, which form the great arteries of universal production thru which all expressions of life are sustained.

These forces represent the feminine quality of cause; they are sensitive, retiring and beautiful; in their material aspect, however, they are expressed in heat, generation, gestation and expansion; being the elements of production, equalization and distribution; they are nature's mystic workers and invisible providers; not one blade of grass can germinate without their chemical assistance, they being the arteries of universal expression, the solar body throbs in response to the out-breathing demand of every life, which it tries to sustain and in ratio with every increasing demand and necessity of material life, the natural supply expands until both are equalized.

Nature's resources cannot be exhausted no matter how great the demand; as one expression disappears, another more adapted to prevailing needs, will take its place, and as human genius unfolds, it will discover more possibility and remodel the crude into new and better form and device, which will bring greater production and better quality.

The Arch-Angel ruling the second department is known as the Goddess of the South; its forces are the elements of Fire, which hold the scales of Infinite justice, to which all life must render an account of their action; in these numberless composites there is abundance for every demand, when wisely sought.

Ignorance and contention have caused nature's forces to become unproductive; usurpation and inharmony act upon the elements of production like a withering frost upon vegetation.

The criminal detention of public property, by one or more persons, for private profit, is an outrage against nature's God as well as society, and should not be tolerated for a moment.

What nature produces, without application of human effort, belongs to all life, and the least as well as the greatest should have free access to that part necessary for their use, if not utilized by some other person; there is abundance for all and not any need for limitation when justly regulated.

The wealth of nature, either visible or invisible, will surpass human calculation, whenever society has become wise enough, to adjust and use it properly. Suffering and crime are caused directly by the criminal monopoly, injustice and imposition which those intrusted with public office and power are allowed to exercise. Whenever such are removed, or caused to serve the public as they should, nature will resound with the victory of Intelligence, Mechanical Genius and Art; science and skill will enhance the productive power of man, and bring the elements to his feet; this again, will do away with the necessity of so much physical labor and give mind an opportunity to develop more concentrative power.

Literature and art will grace the hall of educational centers; music and intellectual enjoyment will be the attraction of every home; architectural beauty and landscape culture will make the farm as well as the city residence a place of comfort, culture and refinement; these, with all modern and public conveniences, owned and operated by society, connecting city, hamlet and the farm, with all the arts and entertainments of the world, and all the new methods of travel and communication now in use, with many more coming, such as psycho-motors, sun-ray heat, Radium stations, capable of illuminating the surrounding country for hundreds of miles, converting night into day, when labor will be a pleasure, and every member of society will be anxious to do his part.

The moisture of the atmosphere also will be regulated as desired and the water courses walled and dredged; these when developed will bring new species of plants and cereals, also new forms of animal life, more refined and beautiful, all of which is now denied us, because of the "Inhumanity of man to man."

We are, however, on the threshold of the new civilization, when one man, nor set of men, cannot ruin the lives of many. The new thought that permeates society has already tolled the bells for the dying octopus of capitalism and industrial monopoly, which have held human lives in slavery and genius buried in the tombs of ignorance, debauchery and crime.

Opportunity for enlightenment, happiness and freedom, is the salvation of society; the contrary is its downfall.

Freedom develops courage, morality and responsibility; remove freedom and men become degenerate, contrary to God's law. Is it not strange that human beings do not practice what they know to be true?

Institutions builded upon industrial slavery must perish; the only adhesive principle in nature is love and harmony; these removed and your whole structure is built on shifting sands.

Humanity, by its inhumanity, becomes self-destructive. Not one link in the chain of developing life should be ignored, or cannot be broken without serious injury:: "The chain is no stronger than its weakest link." The whole must remain useless until all the links are strengthened again.

When one realizes that by his method of doing things, he will receive, whether good or otherwise, he will then know that justice to every form of life, is the only meaning of redemption or salvation, here or elsewhere

A few things which should be remembered: Fear destroys effort; jealousy is part insanity; anger weakens every mental faculty; personal pride makes one coarse and repulsive; lust degrades one below the animal; deception and lies stimulate the lowest qualities of the person, the mind cells wither as by frost, and the soul is imprisoned; the spirit of truth has no abiding place in such natures, only the coarsest mundane can meet their requirement, which finally destroys their body.

The Soul as well as the Mind should have freedom to express their ever increasing power; if not, the soul will retire, and the person with the rest of his forces, will become degenerate; therefore we say to people of today, take off the shackles, both religious and social, and keep them off; to give the races freedom, is to have redeemed them; whenever thy assert their own freedom, they have redeemed themselves.

If society has need of reform, surely slavery exists, either social, religious or economic; if we know of sufferings or poverty among us, surely injustice walks boldly upon the highways; if there is crime among us, we know that man's laws are inhuman.

Wake up, and be men, like men to men, learn a lesson from the animals. What people need all the time is more freedom; what the world needs today is masters of nature instead of slaves, and the first slave to be redeemed is self; as soon as you have broken the chains of personal incongruities from self, you will be ready to help your sisters and brothers to do likewise.

People are born with supreme power, but if they allow habits, desires and persons to subject them; to their reproach, they are not worthy. No man needs serve another, if he chooses to serve God; he cannot do so however, with his stomach full of animal flesh, or his mouth filled with tobacco-plant; all these chain him to the mundane. "Thou shalt not serve any master, nor call any man thy father; for I am the Lord thy God, thou shalt serve only me." Why don't the Christians obey this most important commandment, coming from the Master of Israel?

Is it not strange, in a supposed Christian nation, that the very opposite of this prevails? Evidently they have failed to instruct their disciples in this most important truth, therefore are false to the Christ they presume to follow.

Bondage and slavery generate criminality; freedom and education purify and refine human life, which is a manifest fact. Natural law is co-operative; people should obtain what they require without servitude or strife; remove the incentive and you have removed the criminal, he becomes a living soul; souls are of more importance than dollars or things.

Nature calls to man from the heavens and the earth also, to whom she has abundance to give, but thru his habits he has become deaf to her call. Without original thought progress is impossible. When one finds his thoughts are adulterated with other people's ideas, he should dispell them, or clothe them in a new dress, when giving expression to them; in this way he has changed their character and made them as his own.

The unthinking credulence given to the teachings of the past, both religiously and economincally, has rendered individual thought almost impossible and has crushed the manhood of our race. Be somebody, be yourself or be nothing; don't try to grow wool, when hair is your natural product. Don't be an echo or a parrot, when you can be a man.

People of the present, neither can assimilate with, not fit into the robes, regulations, rules, laws, creeds nor institutions of their ancestors; they are a new people, with new environment and more complex relations, which demand a new and more perfect philosophy to regulate.

The social and commercial attitude has changed; the hoe, the ox-team, stage-coach, sickle and scythe, log-cabin and fire-place, are things of the past; our women and men cannot remain in the nursery, where things are prepared for them.

The tribal cradle may have rocked the baby man and woman for many centuries, but our people attend to their own business and our children sleep without a cradle, or even a lullaby.

The young American is alive and doing; give him the lightning rod, the steam-valve, the motor-car, aeroplane and X-ray, the telepost, telepathic-needle and the wireless; these things would have frightened our Judaean fathers, as well as our more modern ones, out of the few wits they had; and throw their personal Gods, man-angels and devils, into a sorry plight, and put hell entirely out of business. We witnessed a Roman Catholic Priest, in Denver, Colo., go off into a furore of contradictions, when asked, if he thought the people on the planet Mars would be damned, because they did not believe in and receive the sacrament of the Roman Church; his little Man God had no knowledge of the beautiful souls Mars has produced, therefore he watched with jealous eyes any move the devil made, towards capturing those on earth.

Such superstition may clothe a Roman Priest in robes of purple and gold, but we demand to know his right to such expensive toggery, at the expense of other people's effort. He was commanded not to take scrip nor to consider the morrow.

We are well aware, however, that many great masters and scholars were among those monger leaders of the past, who found only the scaffold, the block, the fagot, rack and dungeon, to pay them for the truths they presented, and which have given us more privilege and freedom.

The pathway of progress has ever been marked by human blood, wars, rapine and murder, supported by a religious plutocracy, church rule, kingdoms, empires and governments, either democratic or republic, up to date, which have left nothing but poverty and crime in their wake.

* In our consciousness, however, we see a new star shining in the heavens; this time, instead of the Star of Bethlehem, it is called the Star of Hope, that Divine Hope, which has gone into the tomb with every Savior the world has ever known; that Divine One, who has ever dared to denounce the monsters of greed, graft and fraud, adultery and crime, posing in robes of velvet and gold and bedecked with rare jewels, behind which they hide their crimes, more false and black than an orthodox hell has ever been painted; to rise again from the tomb and shine upon the noble brow of the next Savior, who has always been a friend to man and to every living thing.

This Star of Hope will ere long be placed upon the banner of freedom; freedom from wage-slavery, social and industrial slavery, That Wonderful Freedom, that will place the light of intelligence and truth, upon the brow of every living soul and illuminate every new Redeemer, until at length the races will have arisen from ignorance, superstition and mythical worship, to shine on this earth as the greatest of all illumination that Infinite power can produce.

“Ask and you will receive; seek and you shall find.” This was not said to willing slaves; Jesus was speaking to those who were trying to free themselves from the economic slavery, under which they suffered.

Nature, thru the assistance of human effort and skill, has produced abundance for the protection and sustainance of life, and yet thousands do not obtain the common necessaries, because of the inhuman system of government men have organized, in order to control the product of labor and obtain wealth without giving an equivalent, which all must recognize as subtle robbery, that has crushed every nation and peoples, and which has been denounced by every Spiritual teacher Jesus and others, during every age.

One soul is worth more than all the wealth of the world; how dare ye, who control industry, or hold positions of state, intrusted to you by the people, over look this fact; your common lives are not worth while, they will rot, beneath the heft of your ill-gotten gold and the betrayal of your trust.

Infinite spirit (God) moves upon the elements of power, towards the conscious acknowledgement of its manifest life, all of which are its children, and never fails to recognize their just demands. Nature's resource knows no charity, but a wise provision for the necessity calling it into expression. The elements of supply, contract or expand under the influence of thought waves; right thinking and harmonious effort regulate the abundance thereof; thoughts of charity should not be entertained for a moment, they are always accompanied by those of poverty, both of which are false and an insult to nature's just law.

Whatever good one receives, no matter from what source, belongs to him, and in it there is no charity, but a just expression of natural law.

One has ownership, only in those things necessary to him and presently useful; the rest is moving to supply some other life, and if detained, it is subtle robbery; not only the life has been injured, but nature is robbed of what she intended for some other purpose, and no one can tell to what extent the injury may reach.

What we wish to have understood is, that people gain nothing but failure, whenever they presume to capture natural resource, and by any scheme prevent or dam the channel thru which it moves. The greatest privilege that can possibly come to one, is to assist nature, either mentally or physically, in her productive power, which enobles the assistant. Charity is not truth, it is false, therefore not a good thing; love is much better and far more useful, and lives thru all eternity.

The work of a willing heart, flows thru the arteries of God, and leads to wholeness; those of a must do one, flows through limitation and leads to cussedness. When one cannot give with all his heart, he should better not try, he only condemns the one he feigns to help and belittles himself; the only way to nature's wholeness, is to deny limitation and recognize one's right to have what is needed and help to obtain it for him; in this manner, he will establish the person and himself also.

That which one does for another lives and thru it he has established his freedom and unifies his life with the universal life which surrounds him, a position that gives him power to control the numerous forces in nature, all of which will acknowledge him as master. Study the character of the different elements and mould the design of what you desire, from those corresponding to it, then reflect upon them until your desire is manifest, do not question your power nor the manner in which the manifestation will appear, such thoughts limit and destroy the possible expression.

It is a natural law, that reflected thought will chemicalize the elements and produce the substance, if counteracting thought is not indulged. In the second department of the Cosmos, the elements of which are under discussion, rests the opportunity to multiply all things needed thru reflective thought. The Solar Goddess is entitled Tubriel, signifying channel, and its angel messengers are Gargatel, Tarrial and Gaviel, these centers of universal force, sway the movements of solar bodies and fashion the combinations of invisible forces, as they move upon the face of nature, in purpose to establish the new and more just orders, that are better adapted to the ever present requirements of all life.

As the solar body swings upon the balance, toward more spiritual realization and conscious inward power, the elementals of those centers of cause, become conscious of every demand and can more readily supply them, because of harmony being established.

Thoughts of abundance and success should permeate the mind at all times; to speak truly of self and of God, is to know that life is success, because it is God and God manifest, therefore, whatever may seem to the contrary, there is abundance all around about everywhere. Talk to it, call to it, Tell God what you want, do not be afraid of your own voice, or that your wants are not accordingly right; the angels will understand what your heart longs for and they love to make themselves useful, it is their nature, and when you ask them, they are pleased and become active on your lines; this is the greatest privilege God has bestowed upon its children, and one should be happy and proud, to know of his divine powers, instead of falling under the false sensations of habits or other undesirable forces, from the undeveloped planes of life.

When all the elements of God combine,
To serve man's will, with powers divine,
Upon every rock they will write his name,
And through every land, his powers proclaim;
Each blade of grass breathes forth his will,
And every tree bends to his master's skill,
Nature smiles, when fashioned to adorn,
And to serve is her pleasure, nor her scorn.

CHAPTER VI.

The Difference Between the Elements of Minor Forms of Life and Those Which Constitute the Real Man; Also the Necessity of Proper Care of the Body as a Factor in Unfolding the Principle Man or Atma.

The supreme centers of elemental intelligences, are called Solar houses, of which there are four; each of these contain three solar signs and issue designs, corresponding in character to the elements belonging to that particular house or center, which are distributed as natural demand requires and attracts them .

The human form on any plane, is the ultimate of all formation; therefore, in its constituents are combined the elements of every form of life in the universe, as well as all attributes belonging to them, which are adjusted and prepared by their transition thru those minor forms, to build the higher expression of Infinite design in the human form, and continue still to remodel that, until relative perfection is obtained, making it the Mycrocosmic-center around and to which every atom vibrates; giving human life unlimited opportunity for advancement.

Each solar house contains a trinity of classified forces, those three classes combined, are called a triplic-ity as follows: The elements of Air, are known as the Air triplicity; those of Fire, the fire triplicity; Water and Earth in like manner; each triplicity is regulated in its expression on the material plane, by the three months belonging to it as follows: Air claims March, April and May; Fire belongs to June, July and August; Earth represents September, October and November; Water denotes December, January and February, making three classes of force and one triplicity for every three months; there being four houses, hence four triplicities and twelve solar signs by which the forces are classified, giving one sign to each month in the triplicity to which it belongs.

The supreme forces of each house regulating the departments are called Arch-angels, Solar-Gods, Angels, Solar Angels, even God, in nature known as Eloim.

The human form born under the influence of either one of those signs, will inborn the tendencies characterized by the sign, and to that class or group of forces, it will bear resemblance both in character and general appearance, which gives one an opportunity to train and develop his organized forces along natural lines.

All the elemental qualities materialized in one's form, should be trained and brought under control of mind and will, so they will continue to be of use to the principle man, in whom they are all united as a cosmic-center of divine potencies, universal in power and eternal in endurance and life. This being true, Why should man die in the body in order to gain eternal life? He has already the essentials for continual life, with the power to adjust them, whenever he wills to be complete. God in its great wisdom made man complete, and all that is necessary for him is to perfect that completeness by uniting the material with the mental and spiritual, which brings to him full consciousness of infinite life, both in himself and that which surrounds him.

Death is simply a disunion among the elements of form, all not being equally developed, to where they can function to the greater demands and requirements of united mind, soul and spirit, in the advanced human character.

All adjustments of physical formation, are within one's jurisdiction whenever he studies nature's law, so as to understand his own formation, in which he may find a lesson presented to him, from every expression of life. The sad fact is, however, that the most refined elements are repelled by false habits and coarse desires people stoop to gratify, hence they cannot rise above the claims of the flesh, and death finally comes as a benefactor, not to man, who has sinned against himself and his God, but to liberate those submerged forces he has adulterated by his conduct.

Nature will only recognize principle, and she demands justice for every atom; therefore when man assumes a counter-vibration, by falling, when he should advance and sustain the life depending upon him, he invites dissolution and death; meat-eating, tobacco-chewing, coffee and tea drinking, warm-bathing, together with many other degenerating indulgences, soon increase the Doctor's bill, and the next step is the undertaker.

The elemental properties combined in the animal formation surrounding us, on the material plane, are again manifest in the human form, and are regulated by the solar sign one is born under; therefore to understand the character of the sign, is to understand one's self and his material tendencies, also the animal family that provided the elemental quality of his physical form, which is of great importance to the student of nature.

It is to everyone's interest to see that the animal life which he meets on this plane, receive the very best care; they have the same claim to consideration and training as the material man; both having been formed from the same class of forces, and are dependent upon each other, for advancement and refinement.

Why should man, having the greater experience, privilege and knowledge, presume to murder, or even be unkind to any life over which he has dominion? The animals may have continual life on superior planes also, Mr. Mortal, where they will understand their power; there is where you will meet your judge. You have no authority for your beliefs regarding them, nor your inhumane conduct toward them, because they are helpless and mute in their sufferings, but a degenerate and brutal past generation of men, who indulged every vicious instinct for personal and low gratification thru which they fell far below the animals they abused. Man's inhumane conduct towards the animal life he has met on this plane, has caused the destruction of nations and races, and will still continue, until people recognize the fact, that all life is one, visible or invisible, great or small, animal, human or Divine.

Our precious child, who we feed on the milk of the animal mother, whose child we slay and eat regardless of her dumb muings, may find serious difficulty in securing mental unfoldment, or a healthy body; doomed to a life of suffering, thru the inhumane action of parents towards the animals with which they mingle; children die premature from all manner of unnatural ailments, and the parents will blame everything, even their God, rather than acknowledge the real cause, which is the cruel destruction of other forms of life.

As the body of the animal surrenders to death and dissolution, and from that into food stuffs that build the body and brain cells of the child, as well as the parents, every element of its form trembling with fear and rage, because of its cruel murder; can there be harmony in the form builded from those atoms?

Nature demands restitution, and all must pay the bill, no matter what we think or believe. When the elements of form are injured by any procedure, by which fright or anger are aroused, poison is generated, passing swiftly through the body; and those who eat of that flesh will pay the penalty as well as their progeny.

We are informed of a case, where three hundred people were poisoned, some dying, from eating canned beef, Extra Brand, the flesh of an ox slaughtered in Kansas City, Mo., that fought for its life to the very last cruel blow it received; it took his murderers nearly three hours to finish their brutal work.

The Mosaic law, which is as old as the history of man, is nature's just law; the penalty is, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," which none can escape, no matter what he believes; all must pay the price at the next round of the ladder, where he meets his judge in the reflection of his action, stamped upon his form and also his consciousness.

Every atom thrown from its natural orbit, must be replaced before harmony can prevail, and where those elements are absorbed into form, there will be confusion until properly adjusted again. All obsessions and many abnormal diseases, are caused by confused elements, not in harmony with other forces of the body and trying to escape; these can be removed or healed, only by one, whose material forces are unadulterated.

Those who pray for mercy should remember whether they have shown mercy to the God life in other forms, when it has appealed to them for the same. When the time comes to meet the result of their cruelties, which they surely will, its likely to horrify them.

Every thing possible should be done to train and develop the various elements embodied in the animal, so that when they pass from that form, they are prepared to assimilate with finer forms of life and establish harmony instead of discord.

Many animals could be developed in a comparative degree to man; enough has already been done in that direction to prove their capability, and that the common ideas concerning them are entirely false; there is positive proof that their soul and spirit, survive death of the body, in many cases, the same as man's.

We do not presume to say, however, that all animal forms survive death, yet many do to a limited time, until evolved to the possibility of human form, which is the ultimate on this plane of formation, but if trained and developed to the extent of their ability to receive, we would soon find a very different condition among them, and the human race could accomplish much more by extending to them kindness, more recognition and love; should be given every living thing, and all should have an opportunity to express all they are capable: if not, the race will remain in their limitation, until they learn to extend justice to every form of life, which will also bring justice to them.

Look into the shipping cars and slaughter pens, where the most horrible cruelties are practiced and permitted, terrible enough to make one's blood cold to consider; yet people do not seem to care; instead, they laugh at the screams and groans of the poor dying brute or fowls; and again, cramming them into crates and box cars, where they remain for days, without water or food, calves trampled, bleating to the mother that cannot help, altho she would die to protect its young life if she could. Is there any mercy in human hearts? Why do we stand for such inhumane conduct?

We pay thousands of dollars to retain a Constabulary to protect us from the degenerates we have created by our brutal commercialism; that cares more for dollars than life, either animal, human or divine.

Is it any wonder we are obsessed by destructive diseases, influences and degenerating social conditions? We should better stop preaching salvation and get busy with our Father's business, here and now.

It is pleasant to be kind, and have our four-footed friends love instead of fear us; surely they show that they appreciate every little attention they receive, and will try in their way to make one understand. Were God to srve man, in the manner he does the live depending on him, it would be a sorry state of things, yet why should he expect any better; that which one does to another life, will surely return to him. As one fashions the elements by his thought and action, he must abide with them, until he learns that all life are united as one, by a divine law in nature; therefore what injures one must necessarily injure all.

Life is God, where e'er in nature found,
In man or beast, in bird or flower,
On every land in every sea, or ocean crest,
Where e'er in life the eye may rest,
It all is God, and God expressed.

In form it differs in great many ways,
Born as a worm, in the sunbeam it plays,
It smiles thru the daisy and beautiful rose,
Out from the daffodil, sweet scented it flows
To sit as a star, amidst blue ether bows.

It sings thru the mocking-bird as it flies,
And on the breast of the humming-bird lies,
It dreams in the butter-cup, sweetly serene,
And flows thru the meadow in pure limpid stream,
Awaking the mole, from its innocent dream.

It peeps thru the fern, the wild-rose and firs,
And speaks thru the Katydid; all nature it stirs,
It brays thru the ox and screams thru the quail,
And soars with the eagle, to heights most sublime,
Yet, slinks with the fox, thru jungle and pine.

It looks from the eye of the reindeer and roe,
And the man of the forest, in chasing his foe,
In the storm its majesty; as the monarch to be Triumphantly marches o'er earth and o'er sea,
In every form, from man to serpent or tree.

Can mankind in ignorance, afford to be wrong,
When his body is made from this living throng?
Is there aught in the worm, he willfully crushed,
When from a crystalis, a butter-fly bursts
To be blessed with more beauty, by nature is nursed?

Proud man is there aught, that you have
In form or feature, in blood or your bone
That you can claim, as entirely your own?
You are fashioned from all and to them you belong,
Your pride may be humbled, when meeting this throng.

When one begins to develop his forces, every undesirable influence that is to be discarded is aroused on the defensive, and will conquer if possible; therefore every weak point should be well fortified, until he can declare with confidence, "I will be what I will to be." As long as one lives true to life, death cannot enter, life being the determined point towards which all are moving. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Yes, it is, in this world or elsewhere; to hold one's position he must be master, if not, he becomes a servant.

God's children, those who have overcome the flesh, never sleep; when the wind breathes they listen and receive the message; when the waters murmur warnings, they prepare for action, for danger approaches; when the stones cry out, their heart is pierced, and when the earth trembles they fly to arms, knowing their mother is in distress; they are ever on the alert and on guard, hence the enemy cannot approach the border-land.

One must be born of the spirit not of the flesh; in other words, one must be conceived in consciousness and love by his parents, by which life on the earth and the earth also, will be redeemed and reformed to finer substance; this being so, we must all get busy.

We will wait and watch together, until dangers are all past,

With sin and sorrow vanquished, the earth our home at last,

We'll move in grace and beauty, God's sons and daughters
free,

With every joy more perfect in universal harmony.

ARCH-ANGELS.

They wipe the tears from weeping eyes,
And clothe the naked with raiment warm,
They feed the hungry and bathe his feet,
And shelter him too, from the cold bleak storm ;
Whenever he suffers they are at his side,
To cheer and comfort, and with love they guide
His footsteps, o'er dark morass, or lonely plane,
And carry his cross, until he's strong again.

CHAPTER VII.

The Character and Quality of the Elemental Forces Belonging to the Third Solar House, Spoken of as the Kingdom of Earth and Plane of Form; They Are Understood as Gnomes, Sprites, Elfs and Imps.

There are four distinct qualities of these interesting forces, classed as mundane, sub and super-mundane which are the phenomenal possibilities in nature, known as Psychic forces, the understanding of which is of vast importance to the student of the occult, the Scientist, the Machinist, the Inventor, the Farmer and Stock Raiser, also those who wish to understand the law of spirit or spiritual phenomena.

Knowledge of this department in nature will explain many things seemingly a mystery and assist in obtaining what has been or is hidden, unrevealed or invisible to the ordinary senses, and will also explain how nature clothes herself in visible forms of various kinds and account for the appearing and disappearing of those forms, to and from, the range of human vision.

People during every age both influential and humble, have been convinced of the fact that many persons who have passed thru the change called death, appeared to friends in a natural body, resembling the one occupied before death; but knowledge of the process by which nature presents such a mysterious and marvelous phenomenon, none seems to possess.

The wise egotist, however, will puff himself and exclaim, "Impossible." On the other hand, those who accept all manifestation without a question, will say, with a look of helpless credulity, "How wonderful." We find, however, in most cases the least knowledge or experience people have regarding the invisible side of nature, the more convinced they are of other people's mistakes and even refuse to benefit by the object. lessons nature continually presents, while they stumble along blindly in their own conceit.

Is it any wonder that superstition, ignorance and materiality have fashioned the mode of human events; "when the blind have become leaders of the blind" until at length outraged nature calls them to give an account of their stewardship.

All down the line of human unfoldment, we have history, both Ancient, Medieval and Modern, as well as Divinely inspired and Profane, telling of startling and interesting phenomena experienced by many prominent people whose veracity could not be questioned. We wish to state, however, that whatever nature has presented at any time during the world's history, visible or invisible, is all natural, therefore likely to occur again at any time, where and whenever there is occasion for such manifestation.

Nothing could exist were it not natural; even God could not be otherwise than natural. Expressions of invisible intelligences which are called phenomena, have been demonstrated facts during all ages, and are no less a fact during the present age. The great religious reformer, Martin Luther, who emphatically denied spirit manifestation, only as expressions of the devil, became so incensed at his demon for interfering with his manner of religious work that in his desperation, he hurled the inkstand at it, in hopes to drive it away; and still much later, in the life of George Washington, while at Valley Forge, who saw and heard an angel tell him what would occur to his country in years to come, and also encouraged his victorious movement, when He conquered England's haughty Hosts, with only a handful of men in comparison to the great army England commanded.

We have also an account of our beloved statesman (Abraham Lincoln), who communed with spirit friends and received their message; as well as the renowned Andrew Jackson Davis, acknowledged to be the greatest seer history, either ancient or modern, relates, and yet we have the Fox Sisters of Hydesville, New York, who were the founders of modern spiritualism, their first manifestations occurring in 1848, which have wrought a wonderful change in the religious history and social conditions of this country.

These, together with many more Seers and Prophets, since noted for their wonderful phenomena and philosophy, so touching in its appeal to human consciousness, that it leaves an indelible impression never to be forgotten; we might relate hosts of others had we the space; these are sufficient, however, for what we wish to have understood, i. e., that nature, in her infinite intelligence and marvelous resource, has provided the necessary elemental substance and prepared forces, by which inter-communion can be established between the visible and invisible planes of life; in other words, whereby spirit and spiritual entities can communicate with those on the material plane, by several methods possible to all, who wish to undertake the study of elemental chemistry and its laws, from a psychic point of view, not only such as are now understood, or what we have been able to relate, but countless, more not dreamed of in our philosophy at present.

When speaking of nature's spirits, it is with a deep feeling of reverence and gratitude towards Infinite Intelligence, in its provision for every manner of life, understanding these forces to be the expression of God's love, providing for the material as well as the spiritual requirements of all life in its multiplicity of demands and necessities, whereby man can through development become a prince in his Father's kingdom.

We feel that it should be incumbent on society to have these laws taught in public schools, so as to give the young student an opportunity to understand natural law and make it a factor in the development of nature's resource, by which society should be benefited.

The elemental forces of earth which are known as mundane, have form when organized, similar to human form; build their homes and pattern after mortals in many of their modes of living; those dwelling beneath the earth's surface are small in stature and are shrewd, shy and sometimes vicious, therefore hard to control, but those on the surface and in the atmosphere, are regulated by the material expression with which they mingle and imitate human thought and action, when in harmony with them.

Naturopologists, who understand these forces, think they were the first expression of human life the earth produced. Bulwer Litton, called them the coming race, of which we wish to explain further, they really have been and are the possible forms of all races which ever have or will inhabit the earth, until it also is spiritualized. Many traces of them and their manner of living, which have been found, gave rise to this theory; we have found them to inhabit caves, dells, groves, water sources that were beautifully situated, green meadows, great forests, mountains and ravines; they also build their homes in large trees, huge rocks, and sometimes in the dwelling of mortals, to whom they will bring success, if in harmony with them.

They are the energies and substance also of nature in building the phenomenal side of her life and can assume any form required, meet any demand necessary, and carry messages to any place or person in their sphere. Each quality of these elemental forces have their special functions in producing manifestation; they can be Horse, Dog, Cat, Lion, Ox, or, in fact, any animal form necessary to carry out the purpose; another class can produce minerals of any kind or dematerialize the same; those on the surface and in the atmosphere take human shape and will appear in the likeness of any person, either spirit or mortal, presented to them in the mind or thought of those they meet; also appear as scenery, object, city, country, residence or place, move furniture, create sounds, answer questions or anything in their line; size and weight cannot hinder their movements. It is thru the assistance of these forces, that decarnate spirits obtain the substance which is chemicalized to produce a vaporic body in which they appear to their friends.

All spirit manifestation either physical or vocal, is accomplished thru this source, the quality and accuracy of which depends and is regulated as much by the sitters, as by the medium. These forces are intelligent and often confound the wise, by their profound statements and wise council; many people make the mistake of believing them to be the spirits of their departed friends, when in reality they are but the likeness of the friend; their spirit friend use them, however, as the means thru which he is enabled to communicate with mortals, and build the organic structure, so as to talk, move or do other things necessary to cause material friends to recognize him; hence these forces are the prepared intelligent channel of communication, between the mortal and immortal planes of being, where, form, spirit and soul, ever interblend in producing and developing the human race. A rare opportunity nature has in store for those who wish to understand her laws.

These forces also materialize in the complete form of decarnate spirits, with all the material functions to express their love, relate their experience, lecture and give advice, whenever a medium is found whose organism can be used as the chemicalizing source.

There are many grades of these interesting forces, from the great solar angel entitled Torquett and its supreme messengers, down to the remotest forest sprite; all of which regulate and become a part and factor, in the development and changes occurring on the earth plane. They are the embodiment of the storm, the force of the cyclone and the power of the earthquake; they carry the tidal wave and change the surface of the earth, as well as the interior; they are the impulse of commerce and life of agriculture; they stand by the soldier on the battle-field, and direct the course of your battleship; they lead the miner, help the stock-raiser and direct the navigator; in fact, they are nature's mystic law givers. When men grow wise, they will make their laws to correspond with nature's law, hence be more just in the government of life, in its material relations and remove many difficulties which now obtain.

These elementals are often the Medium's guide, and in that capacity are very useful; they will accept any name given them and answer faithfully when required; they help to develop the Medium and the Medium in turn, develops them, so they can become a human soul; therefore nature never fails to establish equal justice.

It is the emanations of the spiritual forces in man that attract these earth forces at first, and if, at any time they discover low traits in his character, they will become deceptive and betray if possible. When people degrade their nature, these forces find nothing in them to assimilate with, therefore they die, spiritually.

The three Kingdoms of form, animal, vegetable and mineral, are the operators' field for discovery, because the elements of every form are subject to chemical transmutation, even the human form; one can understand what a vast opportunity nature's God has provided for human genius to operate with. And yet, we find people subject to all manner of undesirable influences and environments that enslave them; those who study nature's laws, however, will be repaid for the time given them and will soon be able to say, My law, shall be the one nature's God has written upon "Tablets of stone," and upon every blade of grass, even in the wonderful eyes of the roe, the horse and the dog, which speak of justice and love, more complete than anything man understands, yes, and upon the mountain side and in the valley, where her wonderful message is written in large and small letters that spell, I am, He is, They are; three affirmations that span the universe.

To describe the elemental God, or Arch-Angel of earth and the angel messengers of that department, we scarcely feel competent, because we have to combine heaven and earth in our descriptions; to the seer, however, it appears in rose-tinted robes of gray color, soft and dreamy, trembling in a translucent golden light, dazzling in its glory; crowned with snow-white vapors resembling pure white hair; an expression of wisdom upon the features and composed attitude, which inspire both confidence and a sense of rest in the beholder.

This beautiful emanation of Divine intelligence, holds the current of vital magnetism that regulates the evolutionary changes occurring on material planes; thru a gradual process, folding inward toward change and dissolution, the life essences take their departure to re-appear again in other forms, and thru the Chemistry of thought, they unfold to still more beautiful forms of life, to remain until experience makes greater demands upon their accumulated forces and advanced character.

This wonderful solar God, ruling in the third department of the cosmos, is both elemental and divine in attribute and power; it is the genius of transition and origin of time, directing all changes and assisting organic life, either animal, vegetable or human, while passing thru the process of separation and death of the prevailing form, until again self sustaining.

It has been truly said, that, "A sparrow could not fall without God's knowledge," which is a fact, because it is a part of the whole. Death is not a natural procedure; instead a gradual change by which the forces are transmuted to more spiritual substance, preparatory for the next change is the true order of transition. Old-age, decay and death, are the shadows of belief, superstition, ignorance and wrong living, contrary to nature's law, hence have no real existence, only thru human acknowledgment.

Those solar angels which move in the will and wisdom of God, know the needs of mortal life, and will direct all changes and provide what is necessary to establish harmony. Nature's God understands things that are best for mortal life and will provide. Rest in confidence with your God, and try to forget mortal claims by fixing your mind on the immortal; this will establish your best interest and promote harmony.

Only by a complete knowledge of solar law, can any undeveloped problem be correctly regulated in harmony with man's material requirements; it were time, if we are ever to consider ourselves a civilized people, to have our social and commercial relations regulated for the purpose of building men, instead of dollars.

The heavens, not more than any other expression of life, viewed from only one standpoint, reveals but half its history; we have found developed Seers to contradict, and correctly so, the conclusions of Professors, whom have studied for years from a material viewpoint. The fact that the solar sun is not a luminous body, was given to the world several years before the German professor and astronomer declared it to be a fact, by an obscure medium of Denver, Colorado.

The medical professions are just beginning to recognize sickness and disease, to be a mental condition, yet Psychics have been declaring this fact for many centuries, and recently, have thru their demonstrations in that direction, compelled the M. D.'s to take up the study of man's psychic nature, which has been a great benefit to their practice.

The great medium of Bethlehem confounded the M. D.'s of His time, and so on down to the present; in Houston, Texas, we were personally able to remove some terrible conditions from a boy ten years of age, who had been under the care of two physicians for four days; he had gone into a spasm on Thursday morning and we were called Sunday afternoon, doctors saying he could not live during the day. We were able to remove the trouble, however, and Monday morning after eating a hearty breakfast, he went out and played all morning with his playmates, and went regularly to school afterwards; this is only one of many cases we personally, had to deal with.

We are all, moving slowly perhaps but surely, thru our experiences onward and upward to a more clear understanding of mental chemistry and potent will, as we become more capable to receive inspiration, from pure and experienced minds on advanced planes of being.

One should learn all he could in a material way, and use it for the basis of a higher education.

Knowledge of chemistry is almost indispensable to the study of invisible nature and also in acquiring the knowledge of Alchemy. Language is also a natural product and improves as the person develops comprehension of nature's law; one's manner of language proves to an extent his development. The same law governs all expression, and when the elements of language are understood, it becomes natural. The most capable teachers are those found in heaven (universal ether), with whom all can communicate, unless they close the door by false words, thoughts and habits.

The forces that make up the material side of one's nature, should be considered of as much importance to the advancement of self in all directions as mind or soul; remember, that the elements which form the body, are the soul of that formation, and must become equal in their expression to the more rapid vibrations of the spiritual, or over soul, else all are retarded. Equalization and harmony in the composition of man, will bring success on whatever plane he finds himself, and the greater his advancement, the greater are his requirements.

Heaven has no bounds, that mortals cannot span,
Or soul e'er reach a place, where mind cannot aspire,
Man is greater than all, that human mind can scan,
He is the central force, and of it all, the sire.

Strife is the embodiment of the word Cain, by which (Abel) has been killed, meaning similar forms of life, thus causing a vacuum, which God perceived, (nature's spirit felt) and at once demanded restitution.

The blood-stained forces of earth, cry with a loud voice against the present Cain, asking what has become of your brothers (Abel), both animal and human? You must answer, "Slaughtered for profit and gold." Cain must find his brothers and sisters also, who are buried deep in earth and sea. The waters must give up their dead and the grave its victims; not one part of nature's law will remain unfulfilled, until nature's God is justified, no matter how many prayers are offered or redeemers sacrificed. Infinite wisdom in nature's activity regulates all in harmony with true justice; only by the development of wisdom and love, can man be redeemed from his inhuman and cruel actions; every wound he has made must be removed by his own effort, before he finds freedom.

The fact of one dying, does not change his case nor set him free, down to the land of Nod (mundane sphere), where his work meets him; there he must find his wife (soul consciousness), and his brother also, and square his accounts with nature; then love will regulate his conduct and complete his union with God.

MYSTIC WAY.

Down to the valley of death I strayed,
For a thousand years or more,
Breaking the gloom for a day on earth,
A passing ray, a warm glow,
To find myself in death again,
In that passing night, e'er born of right,
Which the soul's transgressions know.

Ah! mystic way, while thy arm of might
Around my soul may curl,
I linger to sleep on thy bosom deep,
And my banner of life I furl,
Awaiting the day when the master will say,
"Awake, my child, and away
To thy duty in the coming mystic day."

To earth again in the path of pain,
I follow my loving guide.
I question not the path he takes,
Or the lessons in life I learn.
He causes the deep to lull me to sleep,
And the sun to wake me in turn,
Till from earth's dark way I return.

Ah! mystic way, shall it come the day
When we all as you may know,
That there is no night, that all is light,
'Neath thy mystic mantel glow;
We have arisen from earth's dark prison,
No more to sleep on thy bosom deep
We are awakened, now to know.

Ah! mystic way, the light from thy ray,
In my soul will e'er more burn.
And guide my soul, thru passions role,
Till at length, towards heaven I turn,
It has lead me right, thru earth's dark night,
And will bring me again to thy bosom,
Thy love and wisdom to know.

CHAPTER VIII.

This Chapter Will Explain the Character of the Wonderful Solar God Ruling in the Fourth Department of the Solar Organism, Which We Believe Will Be Very Interesting to the Reader.

The great Arch-Angel of the north is the iconoclassed of the starry realm in which it holds the balance of power; it imparts its ruling quality to the elementals and planetary forces operating in that department.

These forces pervade the entire solar system at times, when necessary to establish some unprecedented result, in their material aspect; however, they correspond to Water, Winter, and North, understood as the kingdom of Icon or Vorcon, the "Prince of the deep, moving upon the face of the waters."

This great solar God is beautiful to behold in its crowning circles of sparkling crystals, robed in volumes of glistening vapors, its rapid and powerful emanations sweeping the heavens, sending rays of beautiful light in all directions; indeed while it is most beautiful, yet is also terrible in its swift and graceful movements, as it vibrates between the east and the west, in other words, between the realm of light and life, and the plane of change, decay and death, taking from the imperfect forms the life essence, which it clothes in a pure white crystal mantel, to protect it until "Osirus" returns from the south to the house of Cynabriel and realm of Adona, where they are renewed and vitalized, in the warm embrace of the solar-sun-God; when the souls are quickened with new energy, they move towards channels of manifestation and take form, so as to gain more experience and independent motion, which attracts new designs, demanding purer elements and higher formation, in which they will manifest again on some material plane, in the solar system to which they belong, until the soul demands more experience and another change.

Under the care and influence of those two elemental centers, East and North, all forms of life are resurrected and reconstructed, in regular numbers, necessary to fill the demand for them, and they take form according to the character of the demand, and appear in the design already received and accepted; therefore the demand which precedes the manifestation, only attracts those corresponding to it in design, hence the elements of this great solar system, present a scene of continual change, from one expression to that of another; some going higher on the scale of development and others lower; yet all are protected and carefully guarded, by those wonderful elemental Angels and forces from the centers of cause, until each life is complete and able to establish its own vibration, which may take thousands of years to accomplish.

In the adjustment of forms at those solar departments, is an opportunity by which one can assist nature, to more readily fill demands made upon her resource, by sending direct and correct thought designs, with concentrated demand to have them filled.

Every planet in our solar system, is making demands upon nature for what they require, even for advanced minds and conscious souls, who are needed as teachers and leaders, to build new modes and assimilate new thought waves, which their evolution demand. The deeper the vibration and the more justice and love held in the request, the more potent it is and the greater will be the answering supply.

It is the height of folly to make small demands upon nature. Ask largely, so the supply can be God-like; those designs filled with new energy, are all waiting an opportunity to fill the demand for them, and are anxious to manifest. One gains nothing by making small demands upon nature's God; in its greatness it is ever in a position to pour out its blessings upon all life, so long as said life is in harmony with the infinite law of supply and demand, both of which are inexhaustible.

Enlarge your soul and ask for abundance; when it comes, give it away and ask again; keep it flowing, so that all may be benefited; in this manner one can help the undeveloped life and himself in many ways.

There is an Infinite sympathy between the elements of demand and those of supply, in the nature of things, either human, elemental or formal, even Infinite and Divine; therefore it is wisdom to work in harmony with the law, it saves time, labor and money; try, it will stand the test, which is the only proof of anything.

Planets that sustain physical life, are accompanied by a storage battery, or moons, which in reality are central distributing points, where chemicalized forces are conserved, awaiting the next movement towards assuming form, either mineral, vegetable or animal, upon the next plane of activity, so as to enable them to continue their development.

The planter, stock-raiser, miner or merchant, will find it to their interest to consult the attitude of the moon, at times of planting, mating his stock, or seeking business opportunities and in locating minerals, as well as many other enterprises.

The woman may be considered superstitious, who opens her empty pocketbook to the new moon, asking to have it filled before the month closes, which she will realize, so long as she has confidence, we consider, however, that she has more real sense than man, who sells his soul and conscience, in the commercial gambling house of profit, rent and usury, to obtain millions, drawn from the blood, virtue and lives of men, women and children, who thru a life of common drudgery become degenerate, die prematurely, after being mentally and physically robbed of all that nature intended for them; such men have committed a twofold crime, from the consequence of which they cannot escape.

The sun, also has its attitude towards production, which was understood by the ancient Egyptians, who made their kingdom the wealthiest the world has ever known. At midnight and midday, its vibrations are directly supplying chemicals that produce gold, silver, copper, zinc and lead, together with many finer species of plant and animal substances, which science should have discovered and which methods were utilized during many ages of the Egyptian dynasties. Those who deem themselves too wise to take advantage of such opportunity, simply overlook their own interest.

God is ever active, thruout the whole universe, presenting by every natural and established law, the object lesson, whereby man can become a benefactor and change any circumstance not desirable, for himself or others, and establish better. How complete is the wisdom that governs Infinite resource and how great one's faith and love, when born of experience and knowledge of God.

This Great Solar Angel, separates the impure, remodels them and builds the pure elements of being;

therefore is destructive and constructive, protecting and renewing all forms of manifestation.

It will answer to the demand of the true mystic and lend its assistance to any noble cause; being a universal benefactor, it will serve any purpose of a public nature, such as swaying national powers, controlling revolutionary conflicts or internal disturbances; therefore its forces are not often needed, unless the operator's duties are of a public nature.

It is beautiful, however, as it emanates seemingly from space, illuminating the ether with its wonderful radiations; indeed it is justly entitled, "The Starry God of the North." One gains knowledge, energy and a broader concept of life, on beholding its presence, and one may feel honored, by having such Divine influence recognize his demand.

When appearing to the master, it seems the same as other Spiritual powers, but in its elemental attitude the movements are like lightning flashes, and its presence is like the shock from a powerful battery; its angel messengers are Andries and Atwise; these stellar lights regulate the minor elemental forces of their realm; they act promptly and are not moved nor influenced only by direct demand of the mystic for a commanding purpose.

Any person wishing to hold a service to this magical power, should observe the rules carefully and follow them, until such time as personal knowledge obtains.

The first experience in forming a solar circle and commanding those great forces that represent God, in expression, may be accompanied by some danger, unless care is taken; more especially the starry God of the North, which represents twofold power; yet all will readily serve the will of a true mystic, except where ambition or personal desire becomes the operative's motive; then they will punish the offender.

Those Solar Angels will not obey the demands of a material minded person; instead, will send their messengers to foil his purpose and betray him, a fact spoken of in the Bible, which people do not understand. "I will send lying spirits, who will deceive and betray them." One must be in a position mentally and spiritually, to control the swift and powerful vibrations of these celestial forces, when on the mundane plane, or the atmospheric elements may fly from the room in confusion, the earth spirits, not understanding, become frightened and seek the master for protection, which he must be able to give, else they will leave the room in confusion and break up the circle; their assistance is necessary, because they furnish the material with which the higher forces can take form.

The tense vibrations of those higher forces which are similar to the tones of steel instruments, are not a willful display of power on the part of the solar

Angels and elementals, but simply the mingling of positive and negative elements, as one often hears, when the wind is in rapid motion, but far more charming, while they produce flashes of beautiful white light.

Welcome them when they appear, the same as when entertaining an honored guest or friend; state your requirements in concise wording, requesting to have them executed with promptness; after giving your orders, discharge them with blessing and ask them to answer whenever called; as you require their assistance; be confident and well poised, while communicating with them, and if possible, have them promise to assist and give you their name; this they will not do, in vocal sound; it may come to you by some other method, and when they thus honor you, you can rest assured, whether seen or unseen, they are at your side, to protect or save; should any one, or any power, try to injure you, that power or person, would surely suffer.

No prison bars nor dungeon deep,
Nor hired dragoons that nations keep,
No locks, nor bolts, or stony walls,
Can stay the one, whom God recalls.

No proud display of armed might,
Nor wanton force, engaged to blight
The hopes or life, of those whose rights,
It is to climb the Aerion heights.

The unseen powers, on Elcion Bay,
Attuned to bask in love's sweet spray,
Will hear at once, the mystic's call
And all that threaten him, must fall.

All through life, the master's mind and will,
Are fashioned by a power, so—still,
His call, . . . the flash, a moment's past,
And yet, the die is sealed and cast.

Who dare to tell of power more great,
Or assume to fashion human fate,
None but God, thru heaven's role,
Can make, or break a human soul.

Vorcon, the Prince of elemental powers, controls the key that unlocks the inner temple, and those who find this key, and gain entrance there, have found their inheritance, which is the kingdom of God; in the words of scriptures, "He has taken the Kingdom of Heaven by force." Solar law explains the saying of the Bible as nothing else can.

Vorcon guards the entrance there and those who enter must be wise and fear not; the key is forged in the uppermost chamber of the temple of self, then it must be fashioned by universal demand, so as to fit the lock, the elements of which examine the key with scrutiny.

The forces of the fourth department open locks, bolts, barred doors, safes, prisons and dungeons, and those whom they befriend cannot be imprisoned or otherwise injured, because at the sound of the name given to the mystic, or words he will learn to repeat, the thing wished for will come to pass. When those Solar Angels tell you anything, write it down, for they are not apt to repeat.

The gifts of Vorcon are physical strength, longevity, psychic force, dispatch of time, swift motion, firm will and force of character; any of these can be transferred to a horse, dog, or even to a human being. All organic qualities, either of mind or body are elemental, therefore transferable to other bodies or minds, by reflective thought, the same as all things in nature move under thought force.

To illustrate, select the horse on the race track, the one you admire the most, place your thought upon his mind, reflect the time and hold him in its dispatch during his effort. If you have practiced concentration, this is a good way to prove your power in that direction, you will become more interested, as your horse scores a point, and you can rest assured he will be the winning horse; let your mind be filled with affirmations of victory; two-thirds of the winnings are accomplished in this manner, by those who are proud of their roadster; once a horse has made a record, he is hard to beat, because he has not only the assistance of his master, but also of the majority of those who witness the race, as well as those who have made up their minds that this animal cannot be beaten, and without knowing it, they keep repeating his record in their minds, while all are concentrated towards his success.

To illustrate again, suppose ten men place themselves in a prominent position so as to attract attention, and select another horse, then place time upon him and repeat his record and demand his success; we think the horse could win; notice, it is the attractive horse that gets the prize and also gets assistance. The same can be done with any good roadster, and can also be done for persons, but not to the same extent, because the animals are more subject to thought vibrations in such cases than men.

Talk to your balky horse, praise and tell him of his strength and how good he is, speak silently in his ear, while you stroke his head and pet him, if he resists; continue until he overcomes his fear, which is the sole reason for his balking, and may be caused by psychic influence, to which domestic animals are subject, and if whipped, it only causes them to fear still more the influence they see around them; cruelty does not serve any good purpose.

Domestic animals need proper care in their youth, the same as children, and when such is extended to them, they will be better servants.

Talents are also transferable to other persons, by a sincere desire to do so, and by using reflective thought, surplus flesh or anything which you wish to give your friend, who has not so much as he needs. Those things are all elemental and move under reflected thought, to the place or person requiring such; purity of purpose, however, must regulate those gifts, or trouble may arise from an unjust motive.

We repeat that mind is a universal substance; therefore, the horse, dog or any animal, even the least living thing, have as much of the same substance as is required by them, and only differ in rates of vibration, according as it develops. Mind is Infinite and unlimited, therefore the least may become the greatest, and the greatest may lose the power thru false usage in any personal manner. If the brain is adulterated by false living it cannot sustain the best quality of mind.

Each brain center is regulated by its activities, and it cannot grow beyond narrow personal limitations, until more mind is attracted thru soul development; then new molecules begin to form, which attract more mind from the universal source; the more of this mind substance enters the new cells, the faster will be the brain growth. One vulgar thought will dwarf a dozen brain cells, like frost upon a flower, and if indulged will destroy their possible action, causing the entire personality to become coarse. False habits and desires have a withering effect upon the brain, which is the most sensitive organ of the body and should be protected carefully if one wishes to develop anything worth while.

What we wish to have the reader understand is, that the organized centers of the human body, correspond to the centers of organized forces in the solar body, and people only develop as they remain in harmony with those forces; clean habits, pure thought and truthful expression, are the only recommendations for advancement, when dealing with spiritual powers.

One wishing to advance in the development of all his qualities, should originate as much of the quality of this great Arch-Angel, as he thinks is possible to him and also those of the other solar houses, because those divine qualities place one on lines of affluence and when properly used, attract other great forces and also people of influence.

How delightful to know, that the God-life and power in wind and tide, in earth and fire, will forever protect the soul who has thru personal effort mastered himself and by so doing, have become a cosmic being; such great souls are the beloved of every sphere.

All powers of earth, both wind and tide,
Stand faithful by the masters' side,
The thorns and briers, are taken away,
His path through life is cleared each day;
No earthly tie, can fret nor stay,
The one, who seeks the higher way.

The Fire, with lightning might descends,
Yet, with the master's life it blends;
The winds may howl, with fierce delight,
And waters foam, with furious might,
The earth may quiver, rend and shake,
As straws, men's structures, fall and break.

At the masters' call, their furies cease,
To serve him well, their force increase,
At each request, with measured skill,
They move with grace, to serve his will;
Their jewels at his feet, they lay
And crown him, reigning King each day.

CHAPTER IX.

Directions for Obtaining a Position Where Mind, Soul and Heart, Become as One Center of Power, Acting Together for Whatever Purpose Required.

The important truth which solar science teaches is the divine power in man and woman, to control the elements in nature, and in every particular, cause them to change if necessary so as to serve their requirements.

To be capable of doing so, however, there are laws to which one must conform. "I will be, what I will to be," can be put into practice, providing one chooses to follow the instructions.

One must have complete mastery over self, more especially over sex demand for gratification, where the creative energies of life rest; this can readily be accomplished, as soon as false appetites and habits are overcome; when one has control of this constructive power in his nature he is at once master of many things, but whenever he throws away his substance for a moment's gratification, he has "Sold his birth-right, for a mess of pottage." Read this lesson carefully and remember, that in it is revealed the secrets of the Gods.

It is this divine energy in man that has swayed the world, nations and races, as well as persons for good or otherwise, during all time and will continue to do so, until people learn to conserve it for their special purpose and unfoldment then, they become masters of any circumstance presented to them.

One must understand that this, as well as all other energies in nature, have their special usefulness, and should be controlled and used for that particular purpose.

To conserve this powerful essence and bring it subject to mind and will, is to hold the scepter that wields the powers of nature, and fashions them to your liking. Instead of having it animalize your body, send it to the brain and other parts that need rebuilding if it's possible to build a body for another soul to manifest in, why not remodel your own, according to the design your mental architect has drawn for you?

By conserving this energy, one has power to heal every manner of disease, to which human or animal life is subject.

One would not be guilty of putting decayed lumber or soft brick in the foundation of a house he intended building, and yet, that is what he does, whenever he wastes his substance in gratification, while trying to sustain his body with dross, in form of dead flesh and other degenerating stimulants, instead of using the creative energy for that purpose.

When this creative force begins to animate the organism, use it thru thought, in your business matters, or in any way that seems profitable; keep it busy doing your work, then it will not descend to the sex organs to destroy you; instead, it will ennoble all your powers and beautify them. It can be made to serve your purpose better than to enslave your mind in gratifying desire; such misuse, destroys the body and weakens the mind to your detriment; remember, it will attract other forces not easily overcome, which will lead to your ruin.

This lesson, is of as much importance to woman as to man, and the same instructions followed, will bring success to either one, on any line of business, individual development, or in social and domestic relations; in fact, the one who is wise enough to conserve his creative energies, becomes a radiant center of divine potencies, which nothing can resist and the world's powers are at his feet.

All sensations should be brought under control of mind and will; they are yours to use, not your master's. To strengthen the will for that purpose, however, every manner of stimulants should be eliminated; beefsteak, tea, coffee and condiments, as well as all unnecessary indulgences that arouse false and coarse desires. When this is accomplished, one is undisturbed under any circumstance, capable of retaining self-control, with full realization of complete one-ness, in whom, all action of force, is but the instrument of his will to be used in carrying out a purpose. In this manner the great adept obtains power, by which he can accomplish most wonderful phenomena, that many unthinking people believe to be a myth; he has, however, simply conserved, as the Hindoo would say, "Divine Akasa," the creative energies of "Yahvah."

One who eats, drinks, thinks and sleeps according to the natural life and by doing so, obtain mastery over sex desire, nature's forces are his servants; we do not mean by this, to destroy or deplete this power; on the contrary, the closer to nature one lives the greater and more enduring this energy becomes and the more perfect it makes human life.

The elements, as we all know, have power to shake the very foundation of earth, and destroy nations, cities and places, even all life upon and in them; but to overcome the centralized will of man, when he is made whole through development, is not in their power.

The tidal wave, the cyclone, the earthquake or typhoon, may play their furies on earth and seas, but they will be still, at the command of the God-man or woman, who thru wisdom, have conserved within their body and mind, the divine creative force, entitled Akasa.

One will readily understand the importance of self-mastery and proper development, when so much depends upon it; by doing so the sex is regenerated and the will strengthened, so that the most subtle forces in nature can be retained without injury; lightning may play over the body but it cannot injure; it also insures success on whatever plane one may be, wherever he may go, or whatever he wishes to accomplish; he will remain the impassional center of attraction and as he ascends the spiral lines of developed consciousness, he will still meet more subtle forces, over which he must gain mastery or be subject to them.

One's development, must necessarily be a gradual and continual growth, of which the corner stone is the sex functions, becoming greater as one advances in power, until he radiates Infinite glory; waste this energy and you have destroyed your structure, which soon becomes a useless mass of decaying rubbish.

From the beautiful Solar Angels, which are the most potent forces in nature, to the remotest elemental on the mundane plane, as well as many grades of spirit and spiritual beings, are constantly influenced by the thought and demand of mortal life, and either assist or oppose one, in obtaining what is required, according to the design in the thought they meet; therefore, well regulated thought, filled with creative energy, will at once start a vibration in the right direction, or otherwise, will cause failure.

The aggregate of elemental force, either mundane or super-mundane, are moved by the law of attraction and surround human beings in quantities where corresponding qualities obtain.

We cannot pass too lightly over these points, as they are the leading factors to a full understanding of human possibilities, which are of so much importance to every person, as well as the race.

The creative energies belonging to human life, either male or female, when directed to the mind and operated thru thought, instead of the animal organs, becomes an established power, controlled by the will, by which one can ascend to any point of attainment desired; the physical age to obtain such control, is from maturity to thirty-five, or even later, if judgment demands; one can commence at any age if he desires, although the attainment will be more difficult and hard to accomplish; once one has control, however, he can continue physical life to an indefinite time and master every circumstance.

In teaching conservation of the creative energy, we wish to have it understood that the wise use, for a wise purpose, is always in order with divine law; but to become subject to sexual demand, simply to gratify animal desire and low passion, degenerates and degrades the person who stoops to that plane of living.

God will be used for goodly purpose and bless the one who does so, but it will not serve a false desire, without destroying the one who dares offend its power and Majesty, by vulgar habits; be wise in your relations with God and your life will be blessed.

Two people will start in life, with equally good opportunity, and seemingly as good mentality, yet they do not succeed the same; one will achieve and become an inspiration to those who follow, while the other falls subject to undesirable influences that weaken the mind, and rack the nerve ora, causing discouragement and failure in business, while kindling anew the fires of animal passion, with desire for gratification, thru which he suffers from the demand of unnatural and ungratified forces.

One cannot deceive spirit or psychic force; he is even foolish to make the attempt; the color produced on the ether by his thought and action gives him away and attracts mundane forces that are not desirable. One is known everywhere just as he is; his thoughts, actions and character are stamped upon form and features in fiery letters, to remain until removed by counter-action, under the law of necessity; in fact, one's life is an open book, which all can read, who will, on its pages are written his life's history. Yes, upon form and feature, tone of voice, motion and expression, all cry out with a loud voice for or against, those who make false use of the great powers he is endowed with; nature makes no mistakes; therefore, we ask you to listen to her voice and become wise to your own good.

Man has remained a long time in the animal part of his nature, trying to satisfy his demands with sensuous pleasures, at length to find that he was but part man, feeding upon husks, with little understanding of the great possibilities of his nature, which, when properly adjusted, should build for him a kingdom of happiness with eternal endurance.

When development is required, one should carefully select his foodstuffs so as to build and sustain the higher elements of form, because the quality of food assimilated, produce similar quality of mind and body; each person is characterized by the food, association and environment he mingles with; clothing should also be carefully selected, as well as colors and position; one should not allow himself to fall into things, he should make his choice and move to obtain it; our present and future are fashioned to our demands, therefore it is to our best interest to make them in full consciousness, and prepare to fill the required position.

All foods should be eliminated from three to five days, at intervals each year, so as to give nature an opportunity to displace the old and remodel the new, while the soul takes control of the mind and unfolds a higher quality of thought. Absent yourself from sensational amusements, seek recreation that elevates the mind and feeds the soul. Don't let your soul starve while your body grows fat.

If habits are formed, commence at once to let go, and build for life; the point to arrive at is, to do or not, at will; cut out "I have to," "I can't," or what is still worse, "If I can"; these are self acknowledged slavery, to which no true student will stoop; use your forces and keep them in their proper place, they are your servants, not your masters.

Guard your manner of speech, lest your words be not true; kind words cost nothing and return with good results.

Do not say what you will or will not do; instead, reflect until you have accomplished; the one who tells has given it away, the wind has his secret and he cannot succeed.

Do not let the world know what you think, until it requires you to inform it; then you will receive pay for your wisdom, while honor and reward will crown your effort.

A smile is the fragrance of love, its bloom is spiritual consciousness and its seed is success. Good-will is the beacon-light upon the shores of eternal progress; a helping hand, constructs the ladder on which one climbs to greater knowledge and life. A helpful thought is the mirror thru which one sees his inner-self; encouraging words are the golden steps on which one ascends to eternal life. Condemnation and denial are the twin damons of thought, that destroy both mind and body, and darken the souls of men.

Select some beautiful retreat in nature where you can commune with the soul of things, and receive the baptism of pure truth, from the silent place of the most high; be near a stream of pure water, and in it refresh your body each morning, while the birds sing your baptismal song. Do not feed your forces upon dead flesh, nor insult your stomach with swine; do not chain your soul to the dead nor the dying, or place your mind in a grave yard; rise from those things and be a man, worthy of manhood.

Respect life, in whatever form you find it, and if it requires your assistance, do not fail to give; remember that those who will to be master, cannot afford to be found wanting, and whenever you find suffering, remove it and do not question the power by which it was done; it will be with you when needed.

Never speak of what you can or cannot do; it is not yours to tell; neither tell what you have, or have not done, nor what you are going to do, or make any kind of an excuse for not doing or having done, what was expected or required of you. All these things and sayings are degenerating; the thing that nature requires of you, is to do, regardless of opinions, even your own.

Be kind to everything that has life, even the worm that crawls beneath your feet, know that you are not removed from the least of these and their careless destruction on your part may cause you serious trouble; in their limitations you will remain until you learn to be humane.

Man has the power of God within himself; he does not have to eat the animal kingdom to obtain it. He can be as humane as a horse, at least; it does not eat flesh, yet its power of endurance is great.

From the master of Israel: "Be wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove." One should consider himself not worthy, if he were not equal to those two elements of life. Rise to meet the solar sun every morning as it kisses the rosy lips of dawn, and feel the impulse of pure passion, vitalizing every atom of your body and illuminating your mind, while it strengthens the will, regenerates the sex and in time will transmute the body.

The Creative essence is an eminent substance, more potent perhaps than any quality of life; it is the elixir of life; it first seeks expression thru the sex organs, where it controls and holds all animal life subject to its emanations.

Man being more than animal, should conserve this power and regulate its action with judgment, instead of being subject to its force, the same as the lower animals that cannot understand. Nature helps them, however, by regulating the demand, while man is supposed to regulate himself; the more one indulges this desire, the more he is subject to its force, until his body and mind are destroyed, which is proven by the rapid decay of both. On the other hand, when one retains this essence, he can overcome every obstacle between him and perfect success, if he allows it to escape, however, his life forces go with it and he soon shows the lack of vital energy.

To control this divinitive power is considered the acme of human happiness and achievement. This is the reason Jesus and all spiritual masters taught celibacy and regenercy, for the purpose of retaining this power so as to free the subconscious and super-conscious mind from material bondage, and change the whole cosmic structure, so that the heavens and earth are as one to him, who is wise enough to dare to do.

Why should man with God-like form,
Fear or shrink, 'neath earth's fierce storm?
Erect, sublime, his great majesty
Will calm the force of earth or sea.

To develop aspiration and inspiration, retire to the silence for an hour each morning, or even one-half hour, and rest the mind without thought, so that it can grow to understand greater things; you will find yourself acquiring knowledge of things entirely new to you, and understanding what before seemed impossible.

Those born under the influence of Aries, have mental qualities corresponding to that department of solar forces, and should encourage their development on mental lines. All signs should be recognized when development is undertaken.

In these lessons we teach man's relation to the solar Gods, which are the cosmic centers of Divine potency, and the one who presumes to attract them must be master of himself in every particular; these elementals are pure spirit, that embody, move and control the entire cosmos, yet are subject to man's will, when he is developed to the position of a cosmic man-god, known as the Atma.

CHAPTER X.

This Chapter Explains the Method of Adjusting the Personality to the Higher, or Spiritual Self.

We must remember, that all growth is necessarily comparative, for we meet more advanced souls, as we continue to unfold and develop greater spirituality.

Truth, Love and Wisdom, being the result of true living and pure thinking, when united with mind, soul and heart, will sustain them as a center of divine potencies, thru which the super-conscious or interior Spirit, can manifest the greater attributes of being, which are Wisdom, Judgment and Spiritual Power, significant of the Christ. Those who are developed to such a degree of understanding are born again of the spirit (Born of God), which make them the Sons of God; or, if you please, the children of Light, personally reformed and made whole in the spirit, thru which power, the personality will remain at the mature age of thirty-two, assuming the trinity in nature, which is a complete expression of unified form, that determines the character and position, three tens, denoting the three principles, a mathematical completeness, known as Christ, God, Man, these when united with the exterior, make a complete expression of united forces, regarded as cosmic conscious life, with power to control nature's intelligent forces and mold them to His will.

The principle known as God, in which all others are, is the Wholly Spirit, the indwelling substance, eminent everywhere, in everything and continually manifesting the elemental combinations, of the invisible forces in nature; supplying material life with what is necessary to its growth. It is indeed difficult to find words capable of conveying the exact meaning regarding this spiritual All-ness, which is the substance of every atom, visible or invisible, in the entire universe.

The Christ principle, is the radiant emanation of this substance, God, so pure that the least adulteration will repel it, and it is attracted or repulsed by the action of human thought, in personal desire or otherwise, in noble deeds, kindness and compassion, also fearless adherence to what one believes to be true.

“Whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny, before my Father which is in heaven.” The one who will not stand for truth as he understands it, has already denied Christ, which is the principle embodiment of truth in every arisen human consciousness, never failing to prompt, but if denied, will retire, leaving one in the darkness of sense. It is an evident fact, that those who consider social position of more importance than truth, have but small chance for advancement.

This radiant principle is the center of all life, from the remotest atom to the greatest life in the universe; ever moving on and on, with developing entities, in waves of light, sustaining them all and again returning with each developing cycle, bringing those having acquired the consciousness of its surpassing influence, to the center of cause, where they first obtained independent motion, to be blessed again with greater comprehension and finer perception, together with power to be and to do, according to their own will, understood as "Free-Will," after which they form their own desires and act according to their own intention and inclination; thus thru experience, they begin to build their own character, in which, when developed, are combined, the conscious, sub-conscious and super-conscious self, adherent in the personality, that will regulate the necessary changes with judgment and decision; one should not decide upon any question until it is fully understood.

Nature speaks thru our common needs and environments; the wise are directed by what they relate.

It is a common remark, "The walls have ears"; yes, they have, and eyes also, because they have elementary form, therefore are impressional and have a certain amount of intelligence; the Psychometer reads the impression and interprets its meaning; this quality in the formation of things, is what makes it possible to change them if needed, but we cannot change the structure of our environment by regrets, condemnation or denial; the best way is, to bless them and appreciate the good you have found in them; this will give them power to change for the better and you will soon realize.

One can kill an animal, a tree and even a person, by the false use of words; our environments belong to us, until we outgrow the need for such; one should learn to demand his release, by preparing to receive the new, which proves confidence and brings what is required without inharmony. We build our tomb or mansion by the false use of words, foolishly uttered, or otherwise.

People should develop more love and appreciation for every form of life that surrounds them, even their house and its furnishings; then harmonious environments will answer to all requirements.

The singular numbers I, mine and his, must give place to the plural we and ours, before these higher attributes are attained. We often question why there is so much suffering in this physical world; but we forget how little we consider the part we play in causing it and the many million lives which are constantly destroyed in the most horrifying manner, to gratify inhuman appetite and insane desire. You must remember that the same God life, is the life of all; then how can one expect to escape the results, when he is the cause of so much dreadful suffering to other forms of the same life.

The man with his steel weapon of death, does not hesitate to tear the body of his victim, even delights in its dying groans, without a thought of mercy; why should he expect anything better? When he or his child or even his family suffer, why should he pray for mercy, when he is incapable of showing any to other forms of life?

It is to the interest of every one who has common understanding, to see that each material life is well cared for and protected, and have society organized to that purpose; self-interest is surely an incentive to effort in that direction, do not forget your part if you wish good results.

We can only protect our own interest, to the extent we assist in protecting all life; by keeping our thoughts in harmony with the universal life, among which we live, we cause it to vibrate in our direction for good or otherwise.

Thought is more potent than any other force in nature, it has builded worlds, suns, systems, nations, races and men, even destroyed and rebuilt them again. The inner qualities of mind when developed, regulate our material experiences towards success.

One cannot develop mentally, who commits murder of any kind, or even be accessory to such an outrage.

The resource of nature which provides and sustains material life, should not be in the power of anyone to control, or use for personal profit; instead, should be developed to its full capacity for the benefit of all life; no person, or living thing should go hungry, or without shelter; this world exists because of the physical life it sustains; instead of man's inhuman uses.

Inharmony and disturbance in the distribution and productive powers of nature's resource, brings disaster and one cannot tell to what extent it will reach, we have to meet it in some shape, somewhere, some time.

The more incapable persons or animals are to gain self-support, the more love should govern our care for them, until they retire again to spirit, where the angels will look after their welfare. Yes, after the animal, as well as man, why not? When they are a part of that same Infinite life.

How wonderfully wise are the compassionate of heart, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven.

Wisdom and Love, are the only keys that will ever unlock the hermetic doors of nature, leading to real wealth and honor; they were wisely closed to the unjust and vulgar.

Education or the training of the intellect, does not make a person an angel; it is the use made of the intelligent forces in nature, that makes of him a saint or sinner; evidently the more the intellect is trained, the more injury one is capable of doing, unless he becomes conscious of the higher qualities of his being; one has no need for conscience, when he is conscious of his superior self.

The greatest work yet to be accomplished, is character building, which when complete, one is a center of intelligent forces voluntarily combined to establish continual growth; then the interior and exterior forces of the cosmos are united in the composition of man, like unto God, and one with God, in all the constituents of life; he has then, thru effort and experience, obtained eternal life, as the natural result of physical, mental and spiritual training, a triune combination in which one is powerful and invincible; making him the Christ, or Light of God, to which all the elements of heaven or earth surrender obedience.

The continual strife for supremacy among men, on the material plane, has hindered the development of the highest principle, and we hope that the present intelligent effort of society, will put a stop to such inhumane mingling.

"The inhumanity of man to man, makes countless thousands mourn," and will continue, until society makes up its mind to put men, instead of two-footed monstrosities into office.

Human minds clinging to old belongings, associations, localities, laws, creeds and institutions, as well as methods and regulations established by men, longer than their usefulness, create inharmony, discontent, old-age, decay and death, which is contrary to divine harmony and law. How blessed to be able to let go and have Infinite love fill thy measure full.

Every expression in nature has its elemental soul, therefore a certain amount of understanding measured to its needs, and it can be developed to a great degree, by its use and association with human life; this being so, it is in man's power to make angels or demons out of his environment.

A person can sit to a table, formed by man's ingenuity and in a short time develop in it, the power to answer questions intelligently, as well as to personate human ideas and life; a chair or any article of form, established by human thought, has understanding of its usefulness, because it is built and formed from a living substance which can never die.

If you wish good results in life, treat the things that surround you with due respect and consideration. Love your speechless servants and you will be rewarded with better ones, that are more to your liking.

Keep in touch with all natures' laws and the elements that surround you; they will keep you youthful while your mind matures. Do not be afraid of your

God; it will smile upon you from every star, from every sunbeam and every cloud that shadows your life will portray a greater possibility to your consciousness.

What little one can accomplish as a personality, soon will vanish and the personality also, proving that it was not according to Divine law. Separation means death, union is life; heaven is the universe, and to be one with it, is to be great, just and unified.

The one who takes pride in his personality, should converse with himself for awhile, he will soon find his audience to be thoroughly disgusted. The person who complains, needs a physician, and the best one to call is his own conscience.

What one sees or believes, is no proof; it's only what he knows, and that must be self evident, if it carries conviction. Simplicity is the surest way to Wisdom which is better than gold, because it has eternal life. When one masters necessity and himself also, he has changed the character of his environment.

Wealth is the rightful demand of mind, nature abounds in its possibility, the universe is filled with its substance and when justly utilized will bless the world's people, but when obtained thru injustice, will as surely curse the one to whom it comes. People live too much for riches or dollars; there is a way to obtain, without the sacrifice of the higher principles; it is a fact, that the best results are not gained, where one works just for material wealth; he is sure to lose out in three ways, mentally, spiritually and healthily. We ask what has he gained? Simply dollars, but in most cases total failure; what then has he gained?

The true way to find the best that nature has in store, is first to arrive at a full understanding of self and what it needs, then prepare to receive them; opportunity is ever knocking at your door and if you are not prepared, it will seek some wiser person. Very often when people receive and are benefited, they become so self assured and personalized, that in a few years they have lost out; others succeed perhaps as long as their short physical life remains, but become so coarse-minded that few would care to associate with them, and yet more obtain intellectuality by accepting other people's thoughts, thru book study; thus become psychologized and finally know but little of anything; those have our sympathy.

We call either of these persons a failure, because he has obtained nothing that is of use, or can be retained. The only one who is wise, will take time to live and do so with his whole nature, storing knowledge that will remain with him forever.

He who rolls the stone away from sight,
Must first control each sense delight,
And change all thought of gain or might;
For the entrance to that sacred dell,
Is guarded by a mystic spell;
And the one who enters, ne'er can tell,
Nor take another to that well.

Each must, thru effort, find the way,
And bathe beneath its golden spray,
He never-more, can go astray;
Remaining true to life each day.
In raiment bright he's seen afar,
The beacon light, the guiding star,
To those who travel day by day,
In search of truth, he leads the way.

CHAPTER XI.

This Chapter Explains the Solar and Personal Qualities Detrimental and Also Beneficial to Advancement, Both Mentally and Spiritually, of the Real Self.

Those wishing to overcome the limitations of sense and become conscious of success as an attribute of being, should individualize their thoughts by careful practice in giving them expression, and, in fact, everything undertaken, so as to rely upon self; each self being a central point of mental and spiritual activity therefore should express its own method and carry it to a conclusion; by doing so, he will bring better results than by following what has been taught by other persons.

The master is not the subject, he is unmoved under any circumstance because his inherent power is established. One should pay more attention to what his soul or inner consciousness tells him, than what somebody may say or think about it.

The following commandments should be adhered to, if wisdom is desired: Respect the life of everything, even if it crawls beneath your feet; in love, obey your own higher will, which unites you with Divine will. Love your God with all your heart and mind, even if you find it in your supposed enemy. Ask the Lord, thy God, to give abundance to all life; purify your life by holding all life sacred; keep your tongue still until it can speak wisely. Remove error and establish truth. Examine the lives of great people, you will find they have kept aloof from cannibalism and murder. "Thou shalt not kill," is the commandment; it does not say what you shall or shall not kill, which is very clear. You are not allowed to make scripture.

People resemble the thoughts and deeds done in the body; look around and note the object lesson written upon form and feature alike.

The inhumane slaughter of all forms of life, has cursed the race ever since Cain, whose history precedes that of Empires and which has been condemned by every spiritual teacher the world has known; yet these criminalities are committed, unhesitatingly, by every good and devout christian, who will roast the carcass of his animal brother and before devouring it, will have the presumption to ask God, who seems to be his convenience, to bless the stuff and praise His Holy name, for the provision. Could anything be more insanely ridiculous and vulgar than to ask the Divine Manality to bless his inhumanity? Oh! for the rarity of christian charity under the sun." The slums of mortal thought and conduct make angels weep and sages cry for more wisdom. Inconsistency, thou wert conceived in hell, born of a lie, to revel in gratification and finally rot amidst thy ruins.

The dawn of civilization is yet in expectancy; society seems to have played fast and loose with brute tendencies in the human mind; will it every stop being a harlot?

Every order of being, either celestial or terrestrial, acquires a greater number of attributes and mental faculties as well as greater power of expression, both in ideas and skill, as they develop more of the Infinite perfection of form and mind.

We find, however, that the so-called exact sciences have to deal with two sets of supreme forces; i. e., Spiritual and Mental, having three planes of manifestation, Psychic, Astral and Material.

The Psychic, pertaining to the sub-conscious, connect one with the four elemental kingdoms, which combine in forming designs for manifestation; the Astral registers and regulates these designs, therefore is termed the first Manifesto, full of forms, which gradually materialize according to material demand and, again, dematerialize when their mission is fulfilled; hence the endless appearing and disappearing of life forces, from a substance incomprehensible and invisible to physical senses, is what has puzzled the common mind of mortals for centuries, and will, while they are willing to remain mundane.

In this great laboratory of nature, however, are to be found the student of the occult, the Master of invisible forces, the Mystic, the Alchemist, the Philos- opher, Psychic, Scientist and the Spiritualist, and until the material scientists follow the example of these great souls, they will discover very little of value to the present age.

The Physician, the Chemist or Anatomist will not find the cause of disease, until they recognize spirit instead of matter, as the substance of life. One must reach the soul and spirit, or he fails. Those who have discovered some facts, have done so by intense thought reflection upon some substance presented to the mind from the soul or spirit of things, which is yet unnamable in human vocabulary.

We might class a human mind, as a Divine camera, that takes an impression of the substance of things presented. While we admit there has been important truths revealed during the last quarter century, yet the greatest achievement of science is awaiting the fearless investigator, i. e., to find and measure the fourth dimension of space, and learn to reduce material form back to spirit, or first principle and cause it to return again, by scientific methods, which will be done, and it will settle the question of religion forever.

If thought centralization can bring a spirit into form, why not cause it to retire and reappear when desired, even one's own body; this, the Masters of India understand. Jesus also understood this law, which was no miracle, but a wise provision of nature; one could be or not be, at will, which indeed would be very desirable at this stage of our evolution. That which we do know, however, will prepare the way for more knowledge on these lines.

If people would pray for more wisdom, as Solomon did, instead of so much salvation, they would have accomplished something worth while, and have discovered that the Master Mechanic, the Carpenter's Son, went to heaven, not to listen to foolish psalm singers without knowledge or brains, but to reconstruct its narrow psychological confines and enlarge its mental boundary lines, so that it could accommodate all of God's children. Reconstruction is the order of the Christ, and also of the twentieth century; Jesus called it regeneration; it can be proven by his words, "I go to prepare a place for you; that where I am, there ye shall be also."

People who have cosmic consciousness, have no use for boundary lines, neither in heaven nor upon the earth, even on sea or land, they have all taken down the rail fence, not having any longer, human animals to herd. We are becoming wise enough to shun people and places where life is sacrificed to bigotry, greed and gold.

Come up, ye children of God, out of this vale of sorrow and wrong thinking—out into the illumination of conscious life, into thy Divine self, and let I-can, I-will, I-am, be the eternal watchword, because as I-am, life manifests. Breathe, live and rest in the divine substance around and in you. Do not go from it in thought, nor let it get away from you.

Bare the feet and walk on the earth every opportunity, you will gain a better understanding of material life, its laws and how to adjust yourself to them. Refresh the mind and body in every new thought wave, and keep to the lines of progress. Lay down upon the earth, with arms outstretched and listen for her whispers, feel her motion; she has a message for you, regarding the treasures intended for you and where to find them.

People spend years working for the commonest things, and are not willing to give a month each year, to learn nature's language, which would soon free them from the bondage of necessity and demand of other persons.

Nature is a wonderful regenerator and will bring one in touch with beautiful and intelligent spiritual beings, who make delightful companions and wise teachers and will also prepare him to master the more complex duties of advanced civilization and more modern improvements and inventions.

The Bible was a record of psychic knowledge, originally intended to reveal to man the law ruling the invisible forces in nature, that could help him in his struggle for existence; those wily monarchs took out of it all that was worth reading; it now contains nothing, only a lot of broken paragraphs and confused thoughts that confound the mind; in fact, a babbling of words that conveys false meaning; even Jesus' teachings, that are claimed to have taken him three years to deliver, could be told in two hours by a good linguist.

We do not wonder that the theological professors, not understanding what has been done, are today denying its divine revelations; to have upheld them longer would bring disrespect. Such false teachings is what brought about the terrors of the middle ages, the Spanish inquisition, and the reign of terror in France. The Roman Priesthood overstepped their destiny, by which their power was broken and their cruel ruling were checked forever. Since then, the world's people are gradually coming closer together, in sympathy and love; they are beginning to understand that they are brothers, no matter what part of the world they occupy.

Ministers are scraping the cobwebs of bigotry and false interpretaion from the writings of the Bible, and are trying to translate the few good things they find, into better language, so it can be understood; and even Priests, refuse to be dedicated to, by their infallible man authority. God and the angels are their inspiration now, and we hope it will continue until all are free.

Oh! for a word more strong than tongue can yet relate,
That will break this spell of wrong and fashion human fate
To mouldings far more grand, where art and genius dwell,
When the broken form of slaves are free from tyrant's spell,
With mind and bodies free, their life and joys they'll plan,
In upright and God-like form, they can be a perfect man.

The passing of the Israelites through the Red Sea, also the capture of Jericho by Joshua, under the direction of a spirit, manifest in armour; was believed to be a miracle by the credulous.

We find as late as 1776 a similar miracle could be related if superstition were to judge; George Washington, after leaving Valley Forge, under circumstances that try men's souls, marched into the lion's den, and caused England's haughty hosts to surrender to His Highty will. England was confident of victory and rested in hopes Washington would be compelled to surrender. For several days Washington was silent and reflective; he prayed, not as men usually pray, instead he prayed for America and the freedom of the colonies and their people from the tyranny of English Monarchy; a cosmic conscious prayer in which the life of America and the advancement of the race were at stake; the minds of all the people of the colonies were concentrated, as all understood the critical situation, more especially Washington, until a dynamic wave of thought was started, that swept all before it; no power could withstand or hinder him during that contemplated move, he became invincible and we have no doubt but Washington was conscious of the force he moved in; the great angels of God were at his side.

Will Gatling guns, warships and dollars tell, when a more powerful force than Washington swayed, will demand the surrender of the strongholds of capitalism?

They may build their mighty warships and fortifications, but they will be like straw in the wind before the long conserved mental force, which has been stored for ages, thru suffering and injustice, in the minds of millions; and when they pray, it is not for self nor for dollars they will pray, but for the world's freedom; they will have prayed a greater cosmic-conscious prayer than ever before left the hearts of men; therefore any nation or power that will dare to hinder or presume to overpower the aspirations and hopes of men while under the influence of such demand, will go down, like trees before a cyclone, which has been the history of nations.

It is about time, such powers should become wise enough to understand that human effort to establish freedom cannot be hindered nor suppressed. Wisdom is better than dollars; robbers cannot find her.

Awake, ye sons of toil, and listen to your soul,
For her wealth and beauty beckon to the goal,
Linger not a moment, lest again you sleep,
While some one else doth your soul and treasure keep;
World of wealth and life so grand, if men only knew Their soul controlled the wand that brings it all to view.

Why not lift your mind to heaven and demand,
The just reward of toil, and for truth and justice stand?
Will you bow the head again, when once you have been
free,
To a tyrant worse than king, or pagan monarchy?
You are not worthy of the name, your sire in honor gave,
Nor for the freedom won for you, when you are a willing slave.

We are weary, our mind and pen doth tire,
In trying to relate this most wondrous lire
Oh! for one more glimpse behind the veil
We could more clearly transcribe this tale.

CHAPTER XII.

Instructions for Making a Solar Circle and Holding a Service to the Arch-Angels and Their Divine Forces; Also Rules for the Operator to Follow in the Work of Magical Art.

Secure a room that can be given exclusively to the work, draw a square, either with a crayon or hard chalk, nine feet each way, on canvas or on the floor; then draw three circle lines about twelve inches apart, the first line touching center of each square line; cross them, from East to west and from north to south, with two straight lines, making four equal parts or houses, then draw a circle line about fifteen inches from center; write the names of the Arch-Angels between the first and second lines, in junction with square line, in order as follows, Cynabriel, East, its messengers Michael and Gabriel, on the next space in the same house. Tubriel, south, with messengers Gargatel, Terriel and Gaviel, in same house; Vorcon, Rex, North, its messengers Atwise and Andries, in next space same house; Torquett, west, its messengers, Torguam and Magnatus, on the next space in the same house, with their superior. Write the three Divine names at the center, Alpha-Omega, Om, Yahvah-Christus.

When the circle is finished, baptise and name it, whatever pleases you, which should correspond with what it is to be used for. Use spring water and pure salt when you baptise it, then sprinkle flowers and perfumes of as rare a quality as you are able to secure. The spring water represents creative energy; salt, purity; flowers, peace and harmony. The circle when finished has a living elemental form and soul, prepared for those divine forces to operate through. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His path straight," which simply means we should prepare the way for spiritual manifestation, as Lord, God and Spirit, are synonymous terms.

Whenever spiritualists prepare their circle properly, and their own body when attending one, they will not have so much reason to cry fraud.

Have a well defined purpose when holding a service; do not call the higher forces unless their assistance is necessary to carry out the work, which the minor elementals cannot accomplish.

Prepare yourself, by fasting at least three days, wear pure white linen robes and sandals of same, bathe in cold water, from a spring if possible, every morning before putting on the robes; make a pentical of white linen in the form of a triangle, double, with opening on one side like a door, write your name in full and the name of the Solar God in whose house you were born and the sign also, together with the three Divine names, on parchment, have it blessed and place it in the penti-cle, which must be worn when in your circle, and must be taken out and held up in case of disturbance.

Make the Stole also of linen or silk, have inscribed on the left side of front these characters, "I H. S.," serpent underneath, which signifies subjugation of sex desire, which has held men in bondage and limitation, from which the Master must arise to spiritual understanding; have also marked or engraved in gold, on the right side of front these characters, which represents the silent name of the most high, and are also emblems of power, to be used through reflective thought when in danger or difficulty.

When prepared, stand in the center of the circle, facing the quarter heavens you expect to hear from, raise your arms even with shoulders and ask for what you wish to have done, and if you desire audience with the Arch-Angel, make your request potent and when answered, give your directions, in quiet, concise wording, and receive the Angels as being honored by their presence.

We can give you but the outline of the manner of working; the rest must be born within your consciousness, and if you are sincere, all will be made clear to you after some practice. You must remember that you are dealing with the most powerful forces in nature, therefore every thought must be of the best.

When prepared according to directions, the light emanating from head, hands and form, will form a circle and square in which the material man is obliterated, and the Divine-Atma, or perfect Man stand forth, in all its glory; the spirit forces beholding, believe him to be the Supreme God, who they have come to serve, which in reality is presented by this attitude of a human soul, as a circle within a square, in other words, the invisible clothed in the visible.

If your circle is made on the floor, cover it with canvas when not in use, if on linen canvas, fold and put away carefully.

If intending to continue the work for development or otherwise, it is well to dedicate your life to the higher duties, asking God to guide and direct you, while in the material, and practice with your circle as often as convenient or possible; it builds confidence and expands the mind, preparing it for greater knowledge. When giving up the room, remove all traces of the circle, lest injury should come to those occupying it afterwards.

Do not hold a circle to those solar Gods, nor give any demonstration of your power to gratify morbid curiosity, or to entertain sensational seekers; keep your pearls for better things than swine. These magical services are of Divine order and should be used only to do good and to unfold spiritual understanding and also to give our spiritualized friends from the higher realms, an opportunity to communicate and instruct mortals in the best methods of living.

The circle room should be made as attractive and as beautiful as possible, with works of art, sweet odors, strains of sweet music, both vocal and instrumental; one can have some friends who are willing to prepare in the same manner as the operator, they need not fast only twelve hours, or perhaps from two meals. The same circle will do for either house, or for any purpose desired by the mystic, who may be a woman or man on the earth, but their soul has arisen to heaven.

People cannot understand the secrets in the higher nature of the spiritual, nor even the material, until they have acquired more than ordinary understanding; and then, they are not all revealed to mortals, until they have wisdom enough to use them justly and keep them from the vulgar.

If wishing to develop these powers, retire to some beautiful place in nature, for a month or two each year, where you will have an opportunity to commune with nature's God, or the "Soul of things," as Professor Denton puts it, and while thus engaged, meet the solar sun each morning and make demands for more spiritual light, wisdom and power; again at high noon, with requests for those material things needed and which are necessary to you.

Treat God as a friend and companion, not as a stranger or arbitrary law-giver; let your heart go forth in confidence when thinking of God, who speaks to you from every rain-drop, from every flower, from every bird and whispers to you from every breath of air and from every sunbeam. Trust nature and you will find improvement both in self and in your environments.

Explanation of the principle, "Christ," which people have confounded with man.

Everyone who has developed cosmic consciousness, is related spiritually to Jesus, but that does not signify that he is the Christ; he not only must have this consciousness, but he must have the power also, that proves the great unity of all Divine attributes combined in this Supreme Principle, which is neither male or female, never manifest, yet is the incomprehensible impulse, moving all things towards the best, capable of giving all and doing all, yet receiving nothing in return for what it imparts; being complete, it needs nothing, as all knowledge, wisdom, understanding and love are its inexhaustible attributes; this wholly Spirit flows, in to bless and retires to produce more abundantly, from the ever present substance of all that is (God), moving on and on, forever changing all expression to more complete and perfect life.

Seek your talents, do not rest until you find them, then put them to use; they will grow like beautiful flowers in your garden.

If wishing to find minerals, buried or hidden treasure, stolen property, lost persons, or anything pertaining to material life, the service should be held any time from three to twelve P. M., or at high noon and for phenomenal expression, the same. For spiritual and mental development, inspirational attainment, the morning is best. One should not become impatient if not answered soon, for very often the forces and friends are present, but do not care to manifest.

When one becomes a practical magician, he has conquered two worlds, the spiritual and material also, and profound knowledge will come, as a natural result of the position taken, such as cannot be obtained from material teachers or mouldy literature; instead, one imbibes truth and receives wisdom without effort.

The human mind being a central point of attraction, all that is necessary is to prepare it to receive. All the elements of our environments are ever changing their chemical properties, therefore one can fashion the new to his liking; the body and mind also can be renewed, giving soul and spirit more freedom.

Thought is luminous, especially when under self-training, and when reflected upon an object it draws the object near, therefore one will understand concerning it. Thought having no limitations, it penetrates space the same as light, which is the cause of direct action of those higher forces, in the direction sought; like the lightning's flash the work is done. Whenever people study their inner possibilities they will stop being slaves to circumstances and habits.

The duty of these messengers is to test the mystic's true position and if finding personal ambition the motive for his work, he will be tempted and betrayed into foolish action, and held before his personal mind, as a very gifted person; he becomes proud of his imaginary talents, to the full satisfaction of the senses and for some time he may think there are none like him; he will remain in his conceit for a time, however, at length to find out his mistake; as Jesus was tempted upon the mount, of his spiritual achievements, so will every one, who preumes to climb the aspirational lines, to this plane of knowledge, where the Infinite forces of the universe mingle; yet all however so great, man is their equal, when he has overcome the demands of the flesh.

We do not wish to discourage the Neophyte, our intention is to prepare him against the subtle tempter, which the personal mind will surely meet on the threshold of greater planes of light. The entrance there is guarded well and no one can enter, unless material desire and its twin sister, ambition, are overcome.

These qualities may be of use when dealing with material life, they must surrender, however, to the greater demands of the spiritual man, when dealing with Spiritual Powers. When seeking these higher planes one is tested in a similar manner as if he sought a responsible position among men and if found wanting, he will not receive, instead, will be taken to the heights of his ideal greatness, from which he will surely fall to his personal littleness.

It may take some time to develop to the position of a magician, or even a good mystic, but once established, you will remain so, unless you wish to discontinue, and return to the material.

Those born during August are classed as belonging to the heart of the solar body and are called the children of the Sun God; they are gifted as leaders, masters and teachers, fearless and constructive. People born in the three months of either solar house, have many of the qualities belonging to forces of that department and can develop them if they will.

Pearls, amethysts, diamonds, emeralds and crystals belong to the East and North. Topaz, rubies, garnets, amber and many more of the rare jewels, belong to the South and West.

We do not tell you that this advanced state will be realized at once, but one develops much faster to superior consciousness, by having the heavenly forces to which he belongs as teachers and guides.

The science of Cosmology, teaches the structural formation of Powers, Systems, Sun and Worlds, together with their chemical embodiment, their actions, laws, modifications and also their God-like centers of forces, as well as the developed human beings, to be found on different planes, which can be known only in a limited degree by mortals, until they have developed more mental capacity and understanding. It has been truly said, "Fools may go, where angels dare not tread."

We wish to say in closing, to those who may decide to experiment, that on no account must one use this knowledge for what is known as Black Art and ever after presume to have success, or rise above the commonest life; he is left to regret his error and has lost the opportunity of life.

A solar circle represents the cosmos, the Penticle, the cosmic man, robes denote the position taken and should be worn during the hours of fast.

Man's will united with God's will, is a point of complete At-one-ment that expresses Divine power, and mind is the energy of the Infinite on every plane of being.

We find in every life, a hidden wealth,
Which the soul some day will find,
The clouds may cast their shadows dark,
And the watery winds may blind,
Bright hope, will search those hidden depths
And will, this wondrous treasure find.

Days for work: East rules Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday; South rules Monday, Wednesday and Friday; West rules Monday, Thursday and Tuesday; North rules Sunday, Monday, Friday and Saturday.
